SUBJECT

Operational Security Threats Posed by Arrest of AMCONCERT-1

1. Problem

To attempt to determine extent and nature of possible compromise of the Staybehind Net resulting from the reported arrest of AMCONCERT-1 by Cuban G-2.

2. Circumstances

15.7-On 18 October 1961, Headquarters received a message from the Madrid Station that the QUATUM representative at the Spanish Embassy in Cuba reported that AMCONCERT-1 had been arrested by G-2 during the week of 9 October, when he tried to make a claudestine exit from Varadero Beach. No further details were given other than the fact that AMCONCERT-1 was being held at G-2 Headquarters in Matanzas.

The events which lead to AMCONCERT-1's subsequent apprehension by G-2 appears to be as follows:

> After taking asylum at the Brazilian Embassy ۹. sometime in July, it is apparent that ANCONCERT-1 had made up his mind to effect an escape to Miami via channels used by other members in the Staybehind Net previously. Accordingly, he met Jorge NOBREGAS (known as COCO) on the aftornoon of 4 August, who informed him that necessary arrangements for his exfiltration had been completed, and that he would leave that weekend by boat from the Varadero Beach area. It appears that NOBREGAS was serving in a cut-out capacity between AMCONCERT-1 and the Staybehind Net, and was reportedly given 2,000 pesos by AMSTON-1 to grease the skids for AMCONCERT-1's escape. When AMCONCERT-1 reached the rendezvous site at the designated time where he was supposed to meet NOBREGAS, he learned from an individual known as CUCO that NOBREGAS and three Cubang had already taken off in a fishing boat, who presumably had no intention of taking AMCONCERT-1 with them. (NOTE: NOBREGAS and his three companions later reached Key dest, Florida, where they were picked up by a U.S. Coast Guard vossol).

Since AMCONCERT-1 apparently decided not to return to the Brazilian Embassy again, he recontacted the Stayh. behind Net and an exfiltration plan was worked out with WAVE via the OGAKIK channel for him to leave Cuba on 31 August. AMCONCERT-1 was staying at a beach motel cabin near Boca do la Camarioca since 28 August and was to be taken to the reception area in a fishing boat out of Carabinero Point, once he received the signal by phone to move out. This exfiltration plan failed, however, when the WAVE vessel found a hostile Cuban frigate sweeping the rendezvous area with searchlights, which forced it to abandon its mission. At this point, contact was lost with AMCONCERT-1, who it is presumed returned to his hide-out in Havana.

c. From 1 September to the time he was picked up by G-2, we can only assume that he recontacted CUCO, who presumably was responsible for laying on arrangements for the ill-fated venture at the same location near Varadero Beach. AMSTUFY-1's recent report indicates that AMCON-CERT-1, in the company of five other Cubans, was actually picked up by G-2 on 6 October, as they attempted to leave the beach by boat. It appears that CUCO successfully evaded capture and returned to Havana.
