Subject: Press releases for ASIS, IACP, (See Gum Shoe Issue 35); 2) The Grapevine

1) After you've read the outgoing correspondence dated 6/29 to ASIS and IACP, do you think it advisable to send each group a general type press release about the Board? These two groups are THE organizations of security administrators and law enforcement chief administrators, respectively. Each group publishes a monthly newsletter to members, who represent all 50 states, all US territories, and an international membership. The purpose of the release would be to inform more security and law enforcement professionals about our mission, which should facilitate easier communication when we actually contact their agencies for assistance, it could also result in newly discovered sources of assassination records. 2) The Grapevine is the monthly membership magazine of the Society of Former Special Agents of the FBI, Inc. of which I am a member. The Society is comprised of over 8,000 retired and former SA's around the country. I've suggested in the past that Society chapter luncheons around the country and in the DC area might be a forum for Jack to speak at. A press release to this group should be expected to have the same effect as in #1 above.
