Subject: DRE records.
FYI:this might be the final episode in this ongoing saga....I called Sra. deBarona of the University of Miami Library special collections division on the status of the DRE records that were donated by Manuel Salvat. She informed me that the records are being disinfected and should be ready for public access in about 2 weeks. Salvat did not provide an index, however, and she has repeatedly indicated that her staff cannot provide one in the near future.I guess that leaves us with two options: 1) that we try to contact Salvat again, in order to find out what has been placed in the boxes; or 2) that if a staff member is in Miami, that person should head to the Coral Gables campus to take a look at the records.
