Subject: voicemail message you forwarded to me
That is Harry Tella. His schtick is that he made an effort to "stop" two federal agents who were on the overpass (that is what he said in his one and only letter to us, and he did not elaborate.)I received a voicemail message from him around the time you moved to Boston (probably closer to November) and it was colorful and loaded with expletives. I did not respond.My voicemail message included similar language as yours, i.e. "so he didn't die for nothing." I don't know what, exactly, he is talking about. It might be interesting to return the call, but I think he is in fact "out there."
