Subject: Update

I apologize for not having sent the summary of yesterday's conference call. I have been swamped all day. Let me provide, however, the most important update. Laura, Kevin, and I met with a team of FBI officials. We explained the importance of getting the work completed on time. Laura did an excellent job of posing a series of questions that effectively showed that the FBI could finish its work on time. At the end of the meeting Collingwood said that it had been very informative and he had learned some things that he hadn't understood before. He said he would like to have a few days to straighten things out. We left with the very clear impression that the FBI now realizes that it can and should complete its work on time. I was very pleased at the outcome of the meeting. We will not be sending a letter to Freeh until we hear further details next week.
