Bruce: If a close election hadn't been coming up within days, Bush wouldn't have signed the Records Act. His administration had opposed it throughout. Marwell was appointed head of the Berlin Documents Center in 1980. Reagan wasn't inaugurated until 1981. Martin Martin: Just a reminder. David Marwell told me he was interested in reading vol. 1 on George Bush, but failed to tell me that he intended on keeping for the National Archives. I had a request in a year to year and a half before Marwell and myself had talked about the Bush volume. To me this is misrepresentation. How would you feel, if you had spent $20,000 and two years in research and were not given accurate information? Appreciate your feedback. Bruce C. Adamson
