Subject: Reply Date: 7 Aug 1997 16:40:53 GMT From: "Rocky Clayton" <dsu@onramp.net>Organization: Dallas Sheriff's Union Newsgroups: alt.conspiracy.jfkl am at work and cannot go into everything I wouldlike, but will when time permits.Short version:I ran a shift in what we call "The Old Jail" here for overtwo years. It is directly across from the school bookdepository. It was right outside the window of my office.jack Ruby's cell was also just outside my office door.It wasn't a cell really. We used it for what we called"the small holdover". You can put about twentyinmates in it while waiting to go to court, be takenback to their tank or whatever. This is where Ruby stayed.My impression is that he was allowed to basically set upright housekeeping during his stay in The Old Jail. I was toldhe had unlimited visitation privileges and that Sheriff Deckerpaid him an almost daily visit. I was told that Joe Campeisi came tovisit many times, also that his door was just left open mostof the time giving him free reign of the floor.I also worked at what we call "The Government Center Jail", fora long time. There is a heavy duty boiler plate door on the7th. floor, (supervisor's floor), that I was told has tons ofrecords generated by local law enforcement on the assassination.This door is locked. I was the fire warden in this jail and assuch had every key available to me. I could never find the key tothis door and the serial number normally on the large brasstumbler had been ground off. I asked my Lieutenant about this.That's when he told me what was supposed to be in there andthat only the sheriff and chief deputy had a key, because the recordswere sealed until 2001 by uncle sugar.Can't prove any of that, but this is what is told around the department.I know one thing. You ain't gittin in 'nat door. I tried!Just a little to wet your appetite.Rocky Clayton, PresidentDallas Sheriff's UnionBTW. If you find anything I say interesting, feel free to post itto your group.
