As you are no doubt already aware, the PBS series "The Irish in America: Long Journey Home" begins its three-night run this evening (at least it does here in Phoenix). It's gotten very good reviews. Also, its soundtrack includes the likes of the Chieftains, Van Morrison, Sinead O'Connor and Mary Black. I've already secured the CD, and Van Morrison's rendition of "Shenandoah" alone is worth the purchase price. In any event, the program may be a welcome relief from recent events and media coverage thereof.
