Subject: From Connie Kritzberg, re: Andy at Last Hurrah

To all, (Martin, I request that you send this for me.)I'm amazed to be included in such an illustrious group of communicators.Some I have wished I could converse with for years. Some I was told weredead. Some may have heard the same about me.I may send those I admire for whatever reason a brief message and see iflget a response. I bet not. See how one-way the information highway canbe?I have repounded for one reason only. Andy Winiarczyk, who has been afriendof mine for several years, is now grieving the loss of his mother, whodiedwithin the past few weeks. His father still lives, and Andy's deepconcernsare with him. Andy does charge for his books, but a reasonable amount,in acourteous way. When an author turned publisher paid his bill withunrequested books he was peddling, Andy saw the humor in it. (I can'tsaythat I do.) And he understands why the largest purchase I ever made, forthe 26 volumes, went to another seller.Andy chooses to be a seller of rare and old books, and will searchdiligently for our vaguely explained volumes. I don't really considerhimin the same "class" as Tom and Debra, which is NOT a slur to either.It'sjust that right now my prayers are with Andy and his father. And Iwantedall to know.Connle Kritzberg
