Subject: RE: Camping Excursion!!

Hey Gang? We need a final headcount for canoeing. The trip is planned for Saturday am through early Sunday pm (May 23 & 24) Remember, the following Monday is a holiday so you'll still have time to relax after the trip! Cost is $28 per person, plus any food and drink. (cheap, cheap, cheap!) We need to bring our own gear and tents, but we already should have enough to go around. The potential list is as follows with two people (and a case of beer) to each canoe - we can try to pair up any single folk (wink, wink!) Y -- Christine Y -- Don Y -- Todd Y -- Tara? -- James? -- Kim? -- Kevin? -- Eileen? -- Jenn? -- Claire Y -- Kevin P. (don's friend) Y -- Erin (don's friend) Y -- James (don's friend) Y -- Gregg (don's friend) And anyone else is welcome? The more the merrier!! Don needs to reserve the number of canoes tomorrow AM so we need to know ASAP!! Assuming the weather cooperates it should be a great, relaxing time. Below is my description from before to tantalize you even more. Hope you can come!! On a new idea, has anyone given any thought to Memorial Day Weekend (May 22-25)? I would love to take off for the long-weekend and I was thinking about the great canoe trip D & I took almost two years ago. A whole group of us (about 8 or 9 canoes w/ 2 people per canoe) went on this trip - we drove about 2 hrs away in the early morn, climbed in our canoes and floated in the sun for a few hours, stopped for a leisurely lunch, the canoeed some more. At around 5 we pulled up on the side and set up camp. (just on the side of the river, not at a campground... in the wild!) That night we all sat around the big fire, got drunk and passed out. The next am we woke up, had bkfst, broke down camp, then paddled off again for the next 4 hours. We finished in the mid afternoon and we were home by Sunday evening. With a tan (or sunburn) to boot!!
