

The quick brown fox jumped over the white picket fence. He was pusued rapidly by the rabid pack of hounds. The chase was fast and furious and continued for hours--no end was in sight and it remained unclear which would tire first.