On behalf of both the Assassination Records Review Board and its staff, we would like to personally thank each of you for your hard work this week. Your dedication and drive resulted in your having completed well over 75% of the project we assigned you; at the outset of your internships, we had hoped merely to have about 50% completed by week's end. You all exceeded our best expectations, and we are very pleased with the result.

Each of you should be proud of what you accomplished this week. When the ARRB completes its mandate and disbands in fall 1997, you will be one of only approximately 40 students to have had this kind of an experience; your group had a project unique to yourselves, and you came through for us admirably.

Thank you for your willingness to work, for your dedication and persistence, and for rewarding our trust in you with excellent results. We hope you have had an experience you will not soon forget. If any of you are interested in returning next summer, we would be very receptive, so please feel free to contact us.

Thanks again, and have a safe trip back.
