FACSIMILE

Nina:

First, let me apologize for any discomfort you might have experienced as a result of my letter to the Assistant Secretary. It was never our intention to suggest that you were in any way responsible for the delayed delivery of the cables. I would be glad to write a follow-up note to clarify this and to indicate our great satisfaction with the support we have received from you and your colleagues.

Second, I hereby acknowledge receipt of MOSCOW 24213. In Paragraph 3 of this cable, there is reference to "additional documents from the FSB Archives delivered in November 1995." We have no record of having received these documents or of having been informed of their existence. Can you help us to clarify this issue?

Third, we have assembled the documents referred to in Paragraph 5 of the Moscow cable and will get them to you by courier.

Thanks, Nina.
