

James Wilcott - Former CIA finance officer who claims that he knew of a false defector program and that he had unknowingly handled the finances for the project.

Colonel Thomas Fox- Former head of DIA counterintelligence states that standard procedure was to assess damage done at installations where defector formally stationed.

Gerry Hemming- former Marine sergeant who served in radar control at Atsugi shortly before Oswald. Says he was recruited by ONI, and claims that Oswald was not a genuine convert to Castro.

Victor Marchetti- former high ranking CIA officer who states that there was a false defector program using young enlisted marines.

Robert Webster- worked for RAND, research and development. Webster defected to the Soviet Union shortly before Oswald. Some believe that his defection fit the profile of Oswald's.

Colonel Sam Kail- Army Intelligence officer who specialized in Cuban Intelligence Operations involving Army Intelligence and the CIA.

John Glenn- Former airforce intelligence operative. Upon completing his service he became a left-wing activist. His career is regarded as being similar to that of Oswald's.

Special Agent John Quigley- Spoke with Oswald for hour and a half after Oswald's arrest during a scuffle with Bringuier. Claims that was his first introduction to Oswald when according to Summer's book Quigley reviewed Oswald's record after his defection.

Special Agent Milton Kaack- Investigated Oswald within three weeks after his arrival in New Orleans. Kaack was excused from providing an affidavit by the Warren Commission.

Special Agent Warren Dr Breuys- Rumored to have been seen with Oswald numerous times in New Orleans. Also, did not submit an affidavit to the Warren Commission.

Loran Hall- Anti Castro militant who came forward to discredit the Silvia Odio story about Oswald's visit.

Possible tape recordings as a result of electronic eavesdropping and wiretaps, of conversations between Ambassador Attwood and Cubans from the Cuban FM etc., done by the CIA and NSA.

Manual Artime-Anti-Castro leader known as the CIA's "golden boy." He was involved in the CIA's plot to kill Castro and operated frequently from Nicaragua.

Gilberto Alvarado- Nicaraguan who told Thomas Mann, the U.S. Ambassador to Mexico, that he witnessed two Cubans speaking to Oswald and handing him money at the Cuban Embassy in Mexico City. Believed to be a Nicaraguan intelligence agent.

Eddie Browder- Arms dealer and pilot. He ran guns for Castro and then anti-Castro following the revolution. He was an associate of Jack Ruby.