Dear Mr. Tague:

It was a pleasure to speak with you about the spiral notebook you used to record the events in Dealey Plaza of November 22, 1963. Contemporaneous personal accounts such as the notes you made that evening are a vital part of the historic record of President Kennedy's assassination. I hope you will give serious consideration to preserving this important record at the finest archival facilities in the world, the National Archives in Washington, D. C.

When we spoke, you had questions about the Review Board's work and its press coverage. I have enclosed copies of several articles from various newspapers in your area and USA Today.

On behalf of the Review Board, I appreciate your interest in preserving assassination-related records. I can assure you that the JFK Records Collection at the National Archives would be the best place to ensure that your notebook would receive proper care. Additionally, you would provide the American people with the rare insight and recollections of an eyewitness to this tragic event.

Thank you again for your time. If you have any questions or concerns, please feel free to contact me at ext. 258.

Sincerely,

David R. Montague
