A fifth source advised, on February 20, 1972, that a photograph of the subject is identical to a person calling himself Sam De Palma, who purchased a luxurious house in Cuernavaca, Mexico, in about November 1969. This source said that the house is known as the Villa San Cristobal or Quinta San Cristobal and is located in the Las Quinta area in Cuernavaca.

Celso Carreto Benitez, was interviewed by FBI Agents at Englewood, New Jersey, on May 1, 1973, and July 6, 1973. Carreto said that he did not know anyone by the name of Samuel Giancana, but after viewing a photograph of subject he identified the subject as Samuel De Palma for whom Carreto had worked in Mexico for approximately three years until late August 1971.

A sixth source advised on August 22, 1974, that subject did not acknowledge his true identity to his golfing and card-playing associates in Mexico City but was always referred to by them as Sam De Palma.

The source said this continued over a period of nearly five years even though most of these people had concluded that subject was Giancana after an article with subject's photograph appeared in "Time" magazine on page 17 on August 22, 1969.

It is located on a huge lot of approximately 7,000 meters and completely enclosed with a tall white wall with metal gates. The garden has many floodlights on posts. The building is remote from any other habitation, although there was a house under construction on one side and a deep canyon on the other. Immediately facing the house is a small traffic circle with a garden (a)

Source said that workers in the neighborhood stated that the house at Nubes #2 was occupied by Americans and that there was a black Mercedes at this house. The fourth source advised on July 26, 1967, that agents from Mexican Immigration had made inquiry at Nubes #2 in Cuernavaca and were told by a servant that the American occupying the house was then in the U.S. The servant stated that this individual rarely left the house while in Cuernavaca except to go to the golf club

An eleventh source advised that on December 8, 1967, Ruth Dorenberg, a real estate agent in Cuernavaca, stated that she had handled the sale of the property at Nubes #2. Ruth Dorenberg did not identify the occupants of the property

Her full name is Ruth Dorenberg Pennivich and she acknowledged selling the house at Nubes #2 and that the house was in the name of a company called "Las Nubes, S. A.". This source advised that it had been confirmed that the subject had gone to Merida on various occasions and lived in the house at Nubes #2.

A twelfth source advised on September 11, 1968, that he had determined that the current telephone number for the house located at Nubes #2 in Cuernavaca was listed in the name of "Nubes, S. A recent Mexico City telephone directory listed Jorge Castillo Zepeda at Plaza de la Republica 32, First Floor, telephone 566-8245. The current issue of this directory lists Castillo at the same address with telephone 566-5900.

On November 19, 1969, the tenth source advised that it had been determined that Mexico City telephone 568-1570 Was an unlisted number for Attorney Jorge Castillo at Lava 135, Pedregal, Mexico City. The source believed that this was Castillo's residence address

Panama & U

A nineteenth source advised on May 10, 1967, that Immigration records in Panama City, Panama, showed the arrival there of the subject on September 10, 1966, on Varig Flight 811. These records also indicated that the subject left Panama for Guatemala on Pan American flight 516 on September 13, 1966.

On June 6, 1967, the fourth source advised that subject's attorney had recently stated that he received a post card from the subject sent from Palma de Mallorca, Spain, bearing a date in early May, 1967. d

STATUS WITH THE MEXICAN GOVERNMENT

On September 21, 1966, the fourth source advised that subject had recently been in Mexico as a tourist and had made application to change his status from that of tourist to "rentista". This latter status, according to the source, is one generally granted to retired foreigners who can establish a fixed income. They are legally immigrated to Mexico but cannot be employed. The Mexican Ministry of Government (Gobernacion) denied this application, according to the source, and the source believed that subject thereafter left Mexico.

The eleventh source advised on October 26, 1936, that the Assistant Secretary of Government (Gobernacion) stated on that date that when the subject applied for immigrant status in Mexico he was represented by a very prominent and reputable Mexican attorney. The Assistant Secretary declined to identify this attorney but said that he had personally admonished him for coming to the Secretariat of Government to present the case of such a notorious person.

The Mexico City English language daily, "The News", published an article on page 40 on April 11, 1967, bearing the caption "Al Capone Heir Said Not Here". The article says that the Ministry of the Interior said on the previous day that Sam Giancana was not in Mexico. The article continues:

"The denial came in response to a daily's report that the Italo-American gangster was in Mexico.

"According to the ministry, Giancana was here for a brief stay, as a tourist, last year. As soon as the authorities learned his identity, however, he was asked to leave the country.

"Giancana left Mexico Sept. 10, 1966, the authorities said.

"He was deported by Varig Flight 811 to Panama."

On April 12, 1967, the fourth source stated that Mexican Immigration had been in contact with Attorney Jorge Castillo Z. and had been told by Castillo that the subject, to his knowledge, had not been in Mexico since September, 1966. This source also stated that Mexican Immigration records showed that the subject departed Mexico on September 10, 1966, on Varig Flight 811 destined for Panama.

The eleventh source, on April 13, 1967, advised that the subject's case was briefly discussed on February 12, 1967, with the Assistant Secretary of Government for Mexico. This official stated that not only could subject not be granted Mexican citizenship but that he would not knowingly be granted any type of immigrant or tourist-type status in Mexico. He also stated that the subject, if located in Mexico, would be subject to expulsion, according to the source.

On August 31, 1967, the eleventh source advised that officials of Mexican Immigration had repeatedly stated that the subject was "circularized". This indicated, according to the source, that subject's name was on stop lists maintained at various ports of entry with instructions that he be denied entry into Mexico;

This same source advised on September 8, 1967, that an official of the American Chamber of Commerce in Mexico had spoken about a recent discussion with the Assistant Secretary of Government on the topic of obtaining more work permits for Americans in Mexico. The Mexican official pointed out that the Mexican Government had no facilities for investigating the backgrounds of Americans applying for immigrant status to Mexico. ' He cited the case of the subject as an example of an individual who was almost given immigrant status. He was vehement in his statements that the subject or any other person of that type would not be granted any status in Mexico and would be expelled if found within Mexican territory.

On September 16, 1967, the fourth source advised that investigators from Mexican Immigration had made direct inquiries in Cuernavaca at the house at Nubes 2 and determined that the subject had been residing there but had departed about two weeks earlier. This source advised on September 20, 1967, that Mexican Immigration was confident that the person who had been residing at the above address was identical with the subject and that arrangements had been made for his detention and deportation if he returned to Mexico

The tenth source advised on October 23, 1967, that photographs of the subject had been shown to the manager of the golf club in Cuernavaca. This individual confirmed that the subject had played golf there on the previous day and was using the name Scalzetti. He said the subject was accompanied by Attorney Jorge Castillo of Mexico City.

On April 3, 1968, the fourth source advised that investigators from Mexican Immigration had conducted additional inquiry in Cuernavaca. This source said that it was considered confirmed that the subject had come to Mexico on various occasions and lived in the house at Nubes 2 in Cuernavaca

The tenth source advised on November 1, 1968, that in a discussion with a high official of the Mexican Federal Attorney General's Office, this official stated that the Attorney General himself had passed the word that if the subject was in Mexico, he should be informed that his presence was not wanted and that he should get out

The seventeenth source, on March 27, 1969, furnished information indicating that a petition dated November 14, 1968, had been submitted on subject's behalf to the Secretary of Gobernacion, Department of Immigration. The petition requested that subject be allowed to enter Mexico in the status of "rentista". It stated that a fund, guaranteeing at least 3,000 pesos ($240 U.S.) monthly income for a five-year period would be established with the Banco Nacional de Mexico. The subject promised not to hold gainful employment in Mexico and to subsist on the amount from this fund and from other income which he would receive from outside the country (

Continuing, the petition stated that subject in recent years had been the target of harassment on the part of the press and the government in the United States and that for this reason he was seeking refuge in Mexico

According to the source; a supporting memo was submitted with this petition and stated that subject had requested this same immigrant status in a petition dated August 23, 1966, but that his request was denied by the Secretariat of Gobernacion on September 8, 1966, and he was ordered to leave the country. According to the memo, this refusal was apparently due to intervention of the FBI of the United States Government which had falsely claimed that Giancana was one of the leaders of the "Mafia".

Concluding, this source advised that the above petition was apparently not granted by the Mexican Government.

On December 30, 1969, the tenth source confirmed that subject's name was still on the lookout list maintained by Mexican Immigration. The same source advised on May 27, 1970, that Mexican Immigration agents had again made inquiry at the house at Nubes 2 in Cuernavaca. A maid at this address identified a photograph of subject as the owner of the house but stated that he had not been there for months a state of the house

On August 24, 1970, the fourth source advised that subject's case was still under investigation by Mexican Immigration and that subject would still be subject to expulsion if found living in Mexico

The eleventh source advised on April 13, 1971, that a new Assistant Secretary of Government had inquired about subject's case and wanted to know if there had been any confirmation of subject's presence in Mexico. This official said that he intended to order additional inquiry regarding subject and he commented that Giancana would certainly be subject to deportation if located in Mexico.

The tenth source, on September 3, 1971, stated that information had been received from the Federal Judicial Police of Mexico to the effect that the Attorney General of Mexico had ordered an investigation to locate Giancana

The Mexico City daily newspaper, "La Prensa" 1 on October 24, 1972, page 21, carried an article concerning the "Cosa Nostra" in Chicago and mentioned that the subject was reportedly living in Cuernavaca, Mexico, and not being bothered by Mexican authorities. $\boldsymbol{\omega}$

On the same date, the twentieth source advised that Mexican Immigration officials wanted to know if the statement in this article could be verified and that Mexican Immigration would be making additional inquiry into subject's status in Mexico and his apparent violation of Mexican law (2)

The tenth source advised on March 7, 1973, that this source had learned that an inspector of Mexican Immigration had received an order to locate the subject and investigate his status in Mexico

On March 11, 1974, the eleventh source advised that it had been confirmed on that date that subject's name was still on the "lookout" or "exclusion" list maintained by Mexican Immigration.

On June 28, 1974, the tenth source advised that on the previous day inspectors from Mexican Immigration field observed subject playing golf at the Club Tabachines in Cuernavaca. When this fact was reported to their superiors, the agents were not given instructions as to specific action against the subject at that time, according to the source

APPREHENSION AND DEPORTATION FROM MEXICO .

A twenty-first source advised on July 18, 1974, that subject had been taken into custody on that date by Agents of Mexican Immigration at his residence in Cuernavaca and was being processed for expulsion. This source advised that subject offered no resistance and admitted his identity as Samuel Giancana. (IN)

The twentieth source confirmed on July 18, 1974, that subject had been taken into custody at Cuernavaca on that date by agents of Mexican Immigration. The source said that this action was taken under instructions from the Assistant Secretary of Government. The subject was scheduled for summary expulsion, departing Mexico at 8:15 AM on July 19, 1974, on Braniff Flight 028, destined for San Antonio, Texas. (V)

On September 5, 1974, the tenth source stated that a party of six Mexican Immigration agents went to subject's residence at about 7:00 in the morning on July 18, 1974. Using a pretext, they were able to get subject to leave the house and approach the gate where he was taken into custody. No property or documents were seized. According to this source, the subject was brought immediately to Mexico City and held at the Office of the Inspection Service of Mexican Immigration. The source stated that the deportation of subject was based not only on the fact that there had been an order for several years prohibiting his legal entry into Mexico but also because he had no current Mexican documentation in his possession

The twenty-first source, on July 19, 1974, stated that Mexican Immigration officials knew that subject's attorney, Jorge Castillo, was aware of subject's apprehension and that subject was being processed for deportation. They also knew that Castillo was taking steps to obtain a court order against subject's deportation. For this reason, according to the source, it was necessary to expedite the expulsion order leading to the deportation of the subject on July 19, 1974.
