PALUMBO said that COHEN told him that he, COHEN, was "with ANGELO BRUNO now." COHEN described BRUNO to PALUMBO as "the biggest man around these parts - the boss - and the highest one around." Informant said that several weeks previous to 10/5/59, he had met RAYMOND A. BRALYNSKI, aka. HARRY BROWN, who related to the informant that he and BRUNO had been to Marathon, Fla., to purchase some property from an undisclosed individual, but that the purchase was not consummated due to the price quoted. BRALYNSKI told informant that he was staying at the Albert Pick Hotel in Bay Harbor Islands.

On this occasion informant learned that BRUNO's proposed contract with the City of Philadelphia had gone to the extent that the City Council had appropriated money for the proposed contract. It was said that BRUNO's associates in this contract would have to bid for the contract but that it appeared that this bid would be only to comply with formality. It was reported that BRUNO's associates had not at this time made final payment on the land to be purchased in Salem County, N. J., where the garbage will be dumped.

On 12/18/59, informant said that he had met with City Councilman SAMUEL ROSE on 12/14/59 and thought that in the near future he would have details on the latest development of ANGELO BRUNO's contemplated contract with the City of Philadelphia.

On 12/21/59, informant said that he had been consulted by BRUNO and his associates regarding the securing of a contract for the City of Philadelphia after conference with Councilman ROSE. Informant said that it now appears that the original deal would not go through due basically to strong opposition developed near the proposed dumping site in Salem, N. J. Informant was reported to have discussed with ROSE the possibility of handling garbage disposal and dumping in Tinicum Township, Delaware County, Pa., which according to the informant may have in some way brought about the present situation in order that the informant could secure the contract for himself. Informant pointed out that if he secured the contract, BRUNO would in no way enter into the business.

The following information, even though not derived from a confidential source, is included in this portion of the cover letter as it would have no meaning if included in instant report without benefit of the preceding information:
