ENCLOSURE

SANTO TRAFFICANTE, JR.

In October, 1973, TP T-8 was contacted by Frank Diecidue, a close associate of Trafficante. During the contact with Diecidue, source was informed that Trafficante at that time was definitely in San Jose, Costa Rica.

On January 9, 1974, TP T-7 advised that Santo Trafficante was still residing somewhere in South America, but was unaware of what particular country. However, the source did emphasize that Trafficante was definitely not in Costa Rica.

In August, 1974, TP T-8 advised that he had received information that Santo Trafficante, Jr., is "very sick." According to this source, Trafficante is so sick that he sent for his daughter. This source stated he was aware that Trafficante had an eye operation, but stated his current sickness was not related to the eye problem.

In a communication dated August 22, 1974, the Mexico City Legat of the Federal Bureau of Investigation advised of receipt of information for TP T-9 that Santo Trafficante frequently visited Evaristo Garcia Vidal, Evaristo Garcia Sarmiento, and Lazaro Milian Did, who are all Cuban Nationals, and all former residents of the United States. The above three individuals fled the United States to avoid arrest and imprisonment, and currently operate a retail clothing business in San Jose, Costa Rica.

The Mexico City Legat advised that checks were made at the office of Costa Rican Immigration on August 14, 1974, and the following record of entries and exits into Costa Rica for Trafficante were noted:

SANTO TRAFFICANTE, JR.

On each occasion Trafficante entered Costa Rica with a tourist card. He entered from the U. S. and on each exit he departed Costa Rica for Panama. A further record was located indicating that Trafficante had been in Costa Rica during July, 1974, and had departed July 21, 1974, for Panama. He was accompanied at that time by Joseph Trafficante and Santo Paniello. The departed Costa Rica for Panama. All three had entered with tourist cards.

On September 13, 1974, TP T-7 advised that Santo Trafficante was currently residing in Costa Rica, Central America, and that he recently underwent eye surgery. According to this source, a doctor from somewhere in Florida flew to Costa Rica to perform the eye surgery.

On October 14, 1974, Inspector Korseniowski, U. S. Customs, Miami International Airport, advised that Santo Trafficante arrived at Miami on that date aboard Lacsa Flight #622 from San Jose, Costa Rica.

On October 31, 1974, TP T-7 advised he had received current information that Santo Trafficante was in the Tampa, Florida, area, and had been in that area for approximately two days. According to this source, it was his understanding that Trafficante had recently suffered a heart attack. To this date, the source had been unable to determine how ill Trafficante was. In addition to the above, the source advised that Tampa, Florida, Attorney, Henry Gonzales has been spending considerable amount of time with Trafficante since he returned to the Tampa, Florida, area, in the latter part of October, 1974.

TP T-6 advised that on October 31, 1974, that Trafficante was back in the Tampa, Florida, area, and that he is currently staying with his daughter and son-in-law at 2505 Bristol Avenue, Tampa, Florida. This source also reported that Trafficante is in poor health.
