Lieutenant Commander, ROBERT A. WOLFARD, United States Coast Guard, Air Station, St. Petersburg, Florida, advised that he was the pilot of a Coast Guard plane which sighted a 50 foot cabin cruiser, white hull and cabin, blue foredeck, at 1:10 pm, Eastern Standard Time, on March 25, 1963. This vessel was anchored at a position 23° 42' north and 79° 44' west, approximately 127 miles south southeast of Miami, Florida. Five persons were visible. The name of the vessel was not legible. A radio report of the sighting of this vessel was not made until after the Coast Guard plane had returned to its St. Petersburg, Florida, base. No photographs of the vessel were taken by WOLFARD's plane. Upon being shown photographs of the yacht "ALISAN" WOLFARD stated that that is the same vessel he referred to above. The exact location of the vessel, its description, and the times involved were obtained by reference to the radio and plane logs.

The production of the abovementioned logs may be obtained by the direction of a subpoena duces tecum to the Commanding Officer, United States Coast Guard Air Station, St. Petersburg, Florida.
