Benton was born on July 4, 1920, at Ludwipol, Poland, under the name of Szmul Finkielman; but he commonly used Samuel Finkelman until he changed his name officially in 1943 to Samuel Fink.

He has alleged that he traveled as a stowaway from Poland to France and then to Cuba in 1935 and from Cuba to Panama in 1939. He was arrested as a stowaway by the Canal Zone Police Department and deported to Cuba. He was lawfully admitted to the United States in 1943 while serving in the U. S. Army.

(105-116857-2)

In 1962 Benton was working for Michael McLaney in the operation of slot machines on board a cruise ship. He has been identified as a private investigator and promoter. In 1963 he was involved in the attempt of five Cuban exiles to carry out a bombing raid over Havana, Cuba. An allegation was received that McLaney had supplied the money and the plane to stage this proposed raid which was prevented when the Cubans were arrested by the United States Customs Service. (45-10253-11 pg. 55,56) (2-1810-8)
