SOURCE: A member of a group of Cuban émigrés trained in the techniques of information collection. The group has provided useful reports for over two years.

The following is the gist of a circular letter which Dr. Orlando Bosch Avila, general coordinator of the Movimiento Insurreccional de Recuperacion Revolucionaria (MIRR, Insurreccional Movement of Revolutionary Recovery), is sending to various Cuban exiles, requesting their financial assistance for the purchase of aircraft:

25 September 1963

Esteemed compatriot:

As you must have learned by the press, our organization has begun bombing the industrial and military targets of the Castro régime, and we believe that if we have the opportunity and necessary resources we will be able to continue our softening-up attacks for a period of 90 to 120 days, supplemented by infiltrations of arms and explosives, and that consequently we shall attain the fall of the Habana régime before the end of the coming year. We would not like to fall in the disgrace of the other organizations of accomplishing an attack every 10 or 12 months because we believe that this is in detriment to our cause rather than in its benefit. In order to be successful, in accordance with the experience gained, attacks against Castro by Cubans must have two indispensable qualities: be effective and most of all be consecutive. We believe that the boats, firing against the coasts, etc., etc.
