76. Source mentioned that a Doctor S. I.O., a Japanese Communist Party member, was killing ~~AVILY HET~~'s liver ailment.

77. ~~X~~ YOSHINO ¹¹⁹ was suggested to Source as a language teacher ¹²⁰ by ~~IM~~ (see below), and Source later recruited him ~~as~~ agent. When Source went back to JSC in December 1946, he turned YOSHINO over to ~~IM~~, who in turn passed him PW. When ~~IM~~ in turn went back, in September 1952, YOSHINO was returned to Source's line.

78. YOSHINO was with the Japanese Mission in Harbin and is now employed by the ~~in Jitsugyo Z.A.~~. The Soviets believed that he was an agent for the Japanese Police, quality of his information as well as the quality of the Russian in which it was given was poor; he reported chiefly on American, White and Soviet, in Tokyo.¹²¹ He was salary of $30,000 per month.

~~X~~ YOSHINO has three sub-agents:

(a) ~~(CD)~~, a painter at Johnson Air Force Base, who received $5,000 of YOSHINO's salary. He has submitted full plans of Johnson Air Base and once submitted mimeograph stencils of secret travel orders.

(b) ~~(TOYAMA)~~, a craftsman at Tachikawa Air Force Base, who received another $5,000 of YOSHINO's salary. He has submitted plans of Tachikawa Air Base and once brought in training aids designed to be used with student training aircraft. His information was considered inferior. (TOYAMA) has a wife, age about 40, who is believed to be either a dressmaker or a tailor running a shop near Tachikawa Air Base.

(c) ~~(MURAKAMI)~~, employed in the Customs Office at the Port of Kobe.¹²²

(MURAKAMI) has provided charts and sounding data on Kobe harbor. He stays with YOSHINO when he comes to Tokyo.

END has been saved until last among the Japanese agents, since he is half Russian and circulates among the Russians treated below (Editor).

mainly of the Japanese language (Editor).

least one occasion YOSHINO also reported on a Mission member — SAVEL'EV, and relations with Musa ~~KORE~~.

Other point, Source stated that he believed (MURAKAMI) worked in a commercial firm in Kobe.

Page 3680. YOSHINO also recruited his wife's brother, a Japan Communist Party member.¹²³

He was given the safe name (TAKI), as in agent. YOSHINO was given $50,000 to make the recruitment. (TAKI) is a bookkeeper and works on the Kisen Iaru, which used to run between Japan and India but possibly now plies between Japan and the United States. (TAKI) is reserved for emergency use as a carrier and has not been used to date.¹²⁴

JAPAN COMMUNIST PARTY (INTELLIGENCE)

SL (KOM)¹²⁵ delivered many documents to KUTUMIKOV concerning negotiations between Kim Il Sung and Yoshida. Since, KOSMO was receipt of envelopes from the Party which KIRILENKO, who translated the ordinary JCP intelligence reports, does not see.

22. Source translated some documents received from the Party from English into Russian; several other, which concerned gen. warfare preparations by the Americans, were believed fabricated and so informed KUTUMIKOV. Source remembers another document on intelligence activities of the American Embassy in Japan; it stated that almost all Embassy officials were spies and ordered the Japanese government about. Source and KUTUMIKOV agreed that the JCP intelligence was of little value, as does KIRILENKO.¹²⁶

23. KUTUMIKOV cautioned members of the Mission never to tell JCP members that the Mission has other intelligence channels and agents.

OTHER DENTAL CH. UNITS

24. Source knew of two North Korean agents (names unknown). One came to the Mission about June 1953 and asked for money; HEINTZEN interviewed him and gave him $45,000.¹²⁷ The other came at about the same time with the same request, but was unsuccessful because the arrangements "went astray".

123 Elsewhere Source states (NIKI) is only a JCP sympathizer.

124 YOSHINO and all his contacts have probably been dropped by the Mission because of Source's knowledge of them (Editor).

125 Source knew nothing about (KOM) except that he was a Japan Communist Party liaison man. The JCP information was usually written on rice paper in small blue type (Source).

126 Source believed that the envelope addressed to YOSHINO may contain better information.

127 Source's source suspected that this North Korean was in the employ of American intelligence (Editor). Source also states that this visit was "pre-arranged" with the Center. He does not specify whether the arrangement was made before the N. Korean first visited the Mission or whether instructions from the Center were requested after he made his visit.

87. Efim VOEVODIN has been useful to the Soviets as a spotter, although they suspect him of being an American agent; he has many American friends. He is thus not used as an agent. VOEVODIN suggested both YOSHINO (above) and LISNER (below) as Soviet agents.

88. Another Soviet involved in YOSHINO's case was RUSANOV (RADIST), who reported YOSHINO to be a Police informant but also supplied the information that he was extremely anti-American, which led the Center to direct his continued use. RUSANOV was originally a Red Army officer but fled the USSR in 1939 and came to Japan. At the beginning of the Occupation RUSANOV voluntarily confessed his escape to the Mission and asked for repatriation, but the Mission considered him more valuable as a well controlled agent in Japan and he was committed to such by NIKITINOV. He was, however, rewarded by being accorded (secretly) Soviet citizenship in 1945. RUSANOV's current case officer is SAVEL'YEV. RUSANOV receives about ¥20,000 per month from the Soviets. One of his sources, the one from whom he received the information on YOSHINO, was CHEREMSHAKOV.

89. Another Soviet citizen agent submitting information on the Russian colonies in Japan is Boris AFANASIEV, who was recruited and has been handled by CAVEL'YEV. In one instance he spotted another Soviet agent, a Japanese living near his former residence on 40th Street, in Tokyo, who was an engineer for an American contracting firm. The Japanese had been a prisoner of war in American hands and was strongly anti-American, alleging that the Americans had mistreated him. His firm was engaged in military construction work for the security forces on Okinawa, and the Japanese submitted

127. Dmitri Semonovich RUMYANTSEV is an alias, taken when this man fled the USSR. He came to Japan in 1941 with PETLIN (below). He has overtly been anti-Communist and reported that the Soviets refused him citizenship (Files).

128. SAVEL'YEV now handles all Russian informants for the Soviets (Source).

129. Yuri Apollonovich CHEREMSHAKOV is a white Russian living in Tokyo; he was an officer in the Czarist Army. He is an active member of the Russian National Union (anti-Soviet) in Japan (Files).
