On 4/29/60, MARIANO FAGET DIAZ, former Cuban official during BATISTA regime residing Miami in exile and who possesses considerable knowledge concerning revolutionary activities before and after CASTRO assumed leadership of the Government of Cuba, currently under consideration for development as PSI (Protect), voluntarily advised that on 4/29/60, Radio MANABI, government controlled radio station in Cuba announced "TONY" VARONA, AURELIANO SANCHEZ and and ANTONIO RASCO were traveling from Caracas, Venezuela to New York City, on 4/30/60. R (u)

These individuals, according to the news broadcast, are not able to return to Cuba unless they wish to stand trial. Reportedly, in the "Diario de la Marina" Cuban newspaper published in Havana, VARONA, SANCHEZ and RASCO met with JOSE FIGUERRES, former President of Costa Rica, and three other ex-Presidents of Latin American countries and declared that the Organization of American States should not have in their organization any representatives of a government whose head had not been elected by the people of that country. FAGET noted this excluded Cuba. R (u)

FAGET identified "TONY" VARONA as MANUEL ANTONIO DE VARONA, former Prime Minister and President of the Cuban Senate and an active leader of the Autentico Party in Cuba.
