Answer: Lee Harvey Oswald had to enter his work schedule into a spiral notebook called "An Oiler's Log." Mr. Barbe stated that this log was written different from the other oilers. Oswald, in Barbe's opinion, was either trying to determine if anyone read the log or was trying to glorify his job. The notebook contained entries such as "changed master tapes," "checked millimeters of machine," or words to that effect. These books were given to the FBI and they had Mr. Barbe initial the pages with Lee Harvey Oswald's writing. Mr. Barbe believes that only the pages with Lee Harvey Oswald's writing were taken by the FBI.
