Subject arrived in Copenhagen with his family June 29 from Moscow claiming involuntary detention in the USSR from October 26, 1958. Subject entered the USSR via Czechoslovakia on February 27, 1958 as a tourist but with the intention of establishing residence and adopting Soviet citizenship. Subject claimed he was given employment as a Design Engineer in a Kharkov factory which manufactured mine safety equipment, but by the fall of 1958 he had become disillusioned with the Soviet system and began efforts to return to the United States.

2. In an interview with an officer of the U.S. Embassy in Copenhagen, Subject intimated that the USSR has attempted and may continue to attempt to use his family or their activities to the detriment of the United States. His wife claimed to be strongly anti-Soviet and stated that she accompanied her husband only to preserve the family unity. Since Subject was highly nervous and concerned only with his immediate return to the United States, it was impossible to obtain a complete or coherent story. Subject privately arranged for his passage to the United States. He and his family were due to arrive in New York via SAS flight SK 911, July 3, 6:55 A.M. His probable destination in the United States was given as: Mrs. Eva CITERYNELL, (mother), 2741 Wallace Avenue, Bronx, New York; or Abraham MARCUS (wife's father), 304 E. Place, Bronx.

3. The address of 2741 Wallace Avenue bears a telephone listing under the name of Jacob CITERYNELL, Kingsbridge 7-1517. The address 304 E Place is probably 304 Echo Place which bears a telephone listing under the name of A. MARCUS, Cypress 4-1231.

4. The records of this office reflect that one Abraham MARCUS, born 22 February 1887 in Serejas, Lithuania, applied for a U.S. visa at the American Embassy in Mexico City during the month of
