

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Lead PP's Campaign

LOS ANGELES, Calif., March 17—Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., President of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), is on a nationwide tour to meet poor people, expose the plight of the poor in city slums and rural communities, and call for support and participation in the massive Poor People's Campaign in Washington, D.C. this spring.

From California, where he met with black community representatives in Los Angeles and migrant farm leader Cesar Chavez in Delano this weekend, he goes to Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia this week.

Rev. King spoke at 2nd Baptist Church Sunday, March 17.

On his tour during the next four weeks, Dr. King will meet with poor families in their rural shanties and slum tenements, walk the streets of America's ghettos, visit disadvantaged school children, and speak at mass rallies where poor people will present their grievances in hearings. The purpose is to arouse the nation to face up to poverty and racism and to motivate people to join the Campaign for decent jobs and income and the right to a decent life, starting April 22 in Washington.

From April 22 on, protests in Washington will build in intensity and numbers until the federal government responds to the demands of Poor People. After Dr. King and about 100 other poor people's leaders present demands to government officials, columns of the poor will begin moving toward Washington from the North, South and Midwest, converging on their nation's capital with a determination to stay. The poor people will invite all Americans, rich and poor, black and white, to support and participate, and a massive March on Washington will be announced soon.

On the Poor People's Tour this week, Dr. King will be accompanied by Dr. Ralph D. Abernathy, SCLC Vice President and Treasurer; Hosea

Williams, National Field Mobilizing Director of the Campaign, and other staff members.
