APPROVED FOR RELEASE 2025 UNDER EXECUTIVE ORDER 14176.0 3 - 4 ba P-Krock, Arthur John Kennedy and the Cuban Missile Crisis & Land, Marie His Finest Hour Or a Botched-Up Period?

Presidential administration Each does its best to manage the news and the history of its deeds and misdeeds while. in power. Since Dallas, hundreds of books and untold magazine articles about John F. Kennedy have poured off the presses with the result, observed Andy Logan recently in American Heritage, that the late President's "fine-liberal-fellow image had expanded uncountable times, been transformed and purified, burst all mortal bounds, and soared, toward the realm of the supernatural."

Now we have the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's recollections of the Cuban Missile Crisis of October 1962 in the November issue of McCall's. The recollections seek to perpetuate the thesis, already expressed by Sorensen, Schlesinger, and Salinger in their books and articles, that the crisis was, indeed, the late President's finest hour, more than mak-

Robert Kennedy's From article emerges the picture of a courageous President who moved swiftly and surely to deal with the mortal threat of nuclear-tipped Soviet missiles emplanted 90 miles off America's shores, thus saving the world from nuclear holocaust. The title of the article, which is scheduled to be published in January as a book by W. W. Norton of New York City, is "Thirteen Days: The Story About How the World Almost Ended."

Two Opposing Views

Two recently published books by respected authors cast grave doubts about this picture. They are Memoirs by Ar-, thur Krock of the New York Times, and Dagger in the Heart by Mario Lazo, an international lawyer who once represented U.S. Government interests in Cuba. From passages in both works (and this is confirmed perhaps unwittingly by Robert Kennedy's recollections) there emerges the clear inference that the late President and his brother relied more upon the assurances of the Soviets that offensive missiles were not being put into Cuba than they did to the warnings of none other than John A. McCone, director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), that the missiles were being prepared. Both Mr. Krock and Mr. Lazo state that Mr. McCone first expressed his view to President Kennedy in August-10 weeks before the President, on Oct. 22, 1962, went on television to inform the world that many American cities now sat within the range of Soviet missiles off its shores.

State Department denied time and time again that Soviet missiles were going iterate his recommendation, which Mcinto Cuba. Now hear what Robert Kennedy has to say in his article.

"On Tuesday morning, Oct. 16, 1962," shortly after 9 o'clock, President Kennedy called and asked me to the White House. He said only that we were facing great trouble. Shortly afterward, in his office, he told me that a U-2 had just finished a photographic mission and that the intelligence community had become convinced that Russia was placing missiles and atomic weapons in Cuba. ... The dominant feeling at the meeting was stunned surprise. No one had expected or anticipated that the Russians would de- Mr. Krock. ploy surface-to-surface missiles in Cuba.

"No official within the Government had ever suggested to President Kenneing up for the disaster that was the Bay. dy that the Russian build-up in Cuba of Pigs. would include missiles. . . " (Italics . added.)

Says Mr. Krock in his Memoirs:

"Aug. 10. After examining secret intelligence reports he had received, McCone. dictated a memorandum for President Kennedy, expressing the belief that installations for the launching of offensive; missiles were being constructed on the island. His subordinates who prepared the 'national estimates' papers of the paign. [Central Intelligence] Agency recommended that he omit a statement of this belief until it was completely document- other meetings, with the Soviets during ed. He ordered that it remain in the pa- this period, conceding: "We had been deper."

Again on Aug. 17, says Mr. Krock, Mr. McCone stated his, case in a high-level meeting attended by Secretary of State moon, says Mr. Lazo, flabbe: 1sted to Rusk and Secretary of Defense Mc- discover that "western Cuba had not Namara, both of whom disagreed with been flown over for a full month, and he him. Mr. McCone issued similar warn- reacted immediately, ings on Aug. 22 and 23.

Mr. McCone's Daily Cables

he believed to be a gathering crisis, Mr. McCone's orders were carried out, the McCone departed a few days later for his delay caused by disagreements in the wedding in Seattle, Wash., and on Aug. top-secret "Committee on Overhead Re-30 for his honeymoon on the French Rivi- connaissance," which determined the Uera. But he continued to receive intellig- 2 flight schedules, and by Mr. Mcence reports, and on the basis of these he Namara, who "insisted that the U-2 sent back almost daily cables to Wash- squadron be placed under the jurisdicestimates staff" of CIA "make a firm This was done-over CIA's stern objecstatement of opinion that the SAM-sites tions. [surface-to-air missiles] discovered in During that 10-week period, it will be bombers] were already being assem-recalled, President Kennedy and the U.S. bled on the island by the Russian 'technicians.' He also told his staff to re-Namara had successfully opposed some weeks earlier, that low-level observation flights over Cuba be made to help verification of what the regular U-2 flights were photographing."

Mr. McCone's deputy, Lt. Gen. Marshall S. Carter, overruled him, and did not include his recommendations in the national estimates. "Carter's explanation is that, as charge d'allaires, and in possession of all the intelligence reports textually, which at that point McCone was not, it was his responsibility whether or not to include these statements," says

Mr. Lazo's account goes into much greater detail than does Mr. Krock's, noting that "in brushing aside the CIA warnings, the Kennedy Administration" relied to some extent on assurances it was receiving from the Kremlin that the Russians meant no harm. On Sept. 4, the. Soviet ambassador in Washington, Anatoly Dobrynin, had called on Attorney. General Robert F. Kennedy with a message from Khrushchev. The chairman wanted the message passed along by his (the President's) brother and no one else. It was a promise that the Soviets would create no trouble for the United States during the election cam-

Robert Kennedy discusses this and ceived by Khrushchev, but we had also fooled ourselves."

Mr. McCone returned from his honeyrecommending that the entire island be photographed at once, especially western Cuba. This recommendation was made on Oct. 4." Ten Then, incredibly, in the midst of what days were lost, however, before Mr. ington recommending that the "national tion of the Air Force, under his control."

The U-2 flight of Oct. 14 confirmed Cuba were being developed for emplace- that the Russians were preparing offenments of surface-to-surface missiles with sive missile sites. "McCone's warning a 1,200-mile range and more, and that could no longer be ignored," writes Mr. these missile parts and IL-28s [Soviet Lazo. "... The Kennedy Administration finally realized that the Kremlin had lied. The missile crisis was on."

C.I.A. 4.02 U-2.

SOC.4.01.2 - Thirteen Days - Daggerin the Heart - Memoirs

Continued

CHICAGO, ILL. NEWS

E - 462,916

NCT 26 1958

Milt Freudenheim

How to 'win' a negotiation

As we maneuver to get off the hook in Vietnam, it is useful to refer back to one of the few recognized success stories of recent U.S. foreign policy — the 1962 Cuban missile crisis. Robert Kennedy's long, insider's account, published in McCall's magazine, is a reminder of important lessons half-learned, misread and on occasion forgotten.

First, there was the brazen Russian lying, Gromyko's deceit with President Kennedy, even as American spy planes were photographing the Soviet missile sites in Cuba. Obviously nations don't mind lying when they think they are doing big things in their national interest. The Russians and many others have proved that repeatedly.

Freudenheim

Trust must be founded on observable deeds. There is not much point in wasting major effort trying to wrest a particular set of words from another nation.

SECOND, THERE WAS the key role played by give and take. In the secret American debate, UN Ambassador Adlai Stevenson proposed giving up the U.S. base at Guantanamo, Cuba, and American missile installations in Turkey and Italy. In exchange, the Russians would pull out their nuclear-potent missiles, 90 miles from us, in Cuba.

The Stevenson exchange plan was rejected with the hawks of that day denouncing Stevenson's proposal as a sellout, a Munich.

The Russians, in two messages from premier Nikita Khrushchev, set their own terms for removing the missiles. One message called only for an American commitment to refrain from invasion attempts against Cuba. (This was 18 months after the CIA-sponsored Bay of Pigs invasion.) The other Russian message demanded removal of U.S. missiles from Turkey.

President Kennedy couldn't let himself be pushed into such an exchange by the Soviet audacity in sneaking their missiles into Cuba. But he went a long way toward meeting Khrushchev halfway.

IN A LETTER to Khrushchev, he proposed steps by which the United States would "give assurances against an invasion of Cuba" while the Russians were to agree to remove their missiles under UN supervision.

Furthermore, the President sent his brother, Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy, to tell the Soviet ambassador what we would do. F-Freudenheim, Milt E.IIA. 4- Cuba (Bayof Rig) Kennody, Robert

"He should understand that if they did not remove those bases, we would remove them," Robert Kennedy wrote that he told the Russians.

"He raised the question of our removing the missiles from Turkey. I said there could be no quid pro quo or any arrangement made under this kind of threat or pressure . . . " But Robert Kennedy added:

"However, I said, President Kennedy had been anxious to remove those missiles from Turkey for a long period of time. He had ordered their removal some time ago, and it was our judgment that, within a short time after this crisis was over, those missiles would be gone."

Later the American missiles were removed from Turkey and Italy. They had become militarily out of date, because equally effective Polaris missiles that could be launched from submarines in the Mediterranean had less chance of being knocked out by enemy attack.

A THIRD LESSON is the snags that great powers encounter when they try to make deals involving their two-bit allies. The Russians agreed to remove the missiles under UN supervision. But Cuba's Fidel Castro was furious at the whole deal and refused to permit UN inspectors.

The Russians had to pretend to ignore Castro's complaints. They removed the missiles in such a way that American intelligence could be assured this was really happening.

A final lesson was in the suicidally narrow horizons of some of the top military advisers including then-Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Curtis LeMay. Some yearned for "preventive war" with Russia. One was disappointed when Khrushchev agreed to remove the missiles.

As he listened before the crisis cleared to a member of the Joint Chiefs advocating using nuclear weapons, Robert Kennedy thought wryly "of the many times I had heard the military take positions which, if wrong, had the advantage that no one would be around at the end to know." Uctober 26 1968

Ma Namara, Koberts ennedy , Robert C.I.A 7.01

uban Missile Crisis

of the lessons

By ROBERT F. KENNEDY

Introduction by Robert S. McNamara

IN THE FALL of 1962, the Soviets moved offensive weapons, including ballistic missiles, into Cuba. The world was faced with what many of us felt then, and what since has been generally agreed, was the greatest danger of a catastrophic war since the advent of the nuclear age. Prime Minister Macmillan has said that the weeks of the crisis represented the greatest period of strain which he faced in several decades of public service, including the whole of World War II.

The performance of the U.S. Government during that critical period was more effective than at any other time during my seven years' service as Secretary of Defense. The agencies of the Government-the State Department, the civilian and military leaders of the Defense Department, the CIA, the White House staff, the U.N. Mission-worked together smoothly and harmoniously. That they did so was in large part a result of the efforts of Robert Kennedy. It was he, acting with his brother's consent, who did so much to organize the effort, monitor the results, and assure the completion of the work on which the recommendations to the President were to be based.

But his contribution was far more than administrative. On the basic policy question of whether to force the missiles out by massive air and ground attack or by the far less risky application of a maritime quarantine, he strongly supported the quarantine,

He did so because he saw that the air and ground strikes favored by so many would have brought death to thousands of innocent Cuban civilians and to thousands of U.S. military personnel. He saw, too, that such attacks ran the risk of triggering the launch of nuclear weapons from Cuba against the United States and the risk of Soviet retaliatory attacks on Berlin or on some other vulnerable points on the periphery of NATO.

And he opposed a massive surprise attack by a large country on a small country because he believed such an attack to be inhuman, contrary to our traditions and ideals, and an act of brutality for which the world would never forgive us.

He understood that above all else a U.S. President must, while defending our vital interests, prevent the confrontations between nuclear powers which can lead to nuclear holocaust.

His objective was to force the missiles out of Cuba without war. That objective was accomplished. It was accomplished by a strategy which he helped to shape and which his brother directed-a strategy which applied pressure against the Soviets without ever pushing them to the point where they were forced to an irrational, suicidal, spasm response.

He showed a shrewd sense of diplomacy both in the concept and in the application of the strategy. As a matter of fact, it was Robert Kennedy's suggestion, when we had received two contradictory messages from Khrushchev-the first favorable and the second unfavorable-that we reply to the first and not the second. He actually drafted the reply, stating the terms we were willing to accept, plucking them from the several often disparate Soviet messages. They were the terms on which the settlement ultimately was based.

Si.

11 1 1 L

11

ALS BUD

10 4 nud then a

111

£ G

1 1 1

A16

you .

21 OCT 1968 Orig under Li A. J. of McConty Johnson Days Wennedy Memoir Details 1962 Crisis of a precipice with no way off." The tonsion way off."

By BERNARD GWERTZMAN Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20-"It looks really mean, doesn't it? But then, really there was no other choice. If they get this mean on this one in our part of the world, what will they do on the next?"

been impeached."

critical days were told by be resolved short of war. Robert Kennedy in a lengthy which President Kennedy inprepared to go to war to make sure that the missiles! were removed.

glimpses of his brother's Ad. out, while stopping his been instructed to avoid hosili-perfectly of what terrible ministration under the pressure actually initiating military ac-tion. However, in the event the of a possible world war. The New York Senator wrote ade, the United States was pre-the article for publication inpared to go to war, Mr. Ken-the article for publication inpared to go to war, Mr. Ken-the article for publication inpared to go to war, Mr. Ken-the article for publication inpared to go to war, Mr. Ken-

The New York Times Magazinenedy's article asserts. to commemorate the fifth anni- The blockade was scheduled having said as they both McCall Corporation for an cepted in the next hour if they War I waited, extremely tense, to amount in excess of $250,000, tried to enter the forbidden lation. waited, extremely tense, to amount in excess of $250,000, ince to chief the foroidden lation. see whether the Soviet Union would choose to pull its of-the crisis from the time he was sibility of a conflict, Senator Kennedy wrote, that if some informed on Oct. 16, 1962, that Kennedy's article asserts. The president vowed, Senator the crisis from the time he was sibility of a conflict, Senator Kennedy wrote, that if some informed on Oct. 16, 1962, that Kennedy's article asserts. Achieve missiles out of Cuba missile sites had been discov-as President Kennedy had de- ered by a U-2 reconnaissance manded or would risk a plane flying over Cuba until the world war with the United denouement on Oct. 28, when States. "I just don't think there was any choice, and not only that, if you hadn't acted, you the two great powers. Mr Kennedy's article asserts. The aircraft carrier Essex a book on the critical events was to signal the submarine by of that October, it would be sonar to surface and identify understood that "we made fused, said Secretary McNa-sary room to move." The confrontation between that, if you hadn't acted, you the two great powers. Mr Kennedy's article asserts. The aircraft carrier Essex a book on the critical events was to signal the submarine by of that October, it would be sonar to surface and identify understood that "we made fused, said Secretary McNa-sary room to move."

would have been impeached," nedy wrote, "brought the world Mr. Kennedy-who was At- to the abyss of nuclear destruc-

President Kennedy thought President Kennedy and his adfor a moment, according to visers worked in extreme sehis brother, and said, "That's crecy to devise their course of what I think—I would have action in light of the discovery of the missiles. The second was from Oct. 22 until Oct. 28,

The agony, the doubts and when the entire world wonthe quiet triumph of those dered whether the crisis could

The President decided against article written last year and at the island's missile basesscheduled to be published an action, Robert Kennedy posthumously tomorrow by wrote, that was advocated by "McCall's magazine under the military leaders including the title "Thirteen Days." the then Chief of Staff of the The publication is taking Air Force, Gen. Curtis E. Le-place on the eve of the sixth may, now the American Inde-pendent party's candidate for anniversary of the speech in Vice President.

Instead, the President adoptformed the nation and the ed as a first step, a plan for world that Soviet offensive a quarantine of Cuba that was missiles had been detected in supported by Secretary of State Cuba and warned Moscow Dean Rusk and the Secretary that the United States was Namara, and by his brother. U.S. Ready for War

The blockade of the island, Robert Kennedy's account chev time to withdraw the misadds little to what already siles without Soviet humiliahas been published by others tion, was seen as a means of glimpses of his brother's Ad- out, while stopping short of the table. For a few fleeting and he was no longer the Pres-

 McNamara Remains Firm President Kennedy then said:

"Time of Gravest Concern"

"Inexplicably, I thought of when he was ill and almost died: when he lost his child;

when we learned that our old-until I heard the President say:

'Isn't there some way we can avoid having our first exchange with a Russian submarine-al-

Mr. McNamara's reply, Sena-

"No, there's too much danger most anything but that.""

tor Kennedy wrote, was:

the article continues.

Or not done?

ident."

hurt."

The tension was broken, the against publication because he the President and his advisers Senator declared, when a mes-did not want it alleged that he was trying to use the article out of political motives. sassination last June, his estate a cloud over us all and particu-approaching the guarantine line decided to offer the 25,000-larly over the President." had stopped dead in the water, word manuscript for sale. It A few minutes after 10 an indication that Manuaetter

NEWNERY , KUSTER

That was what Robert F. ever paid for a manuscript of were accompanied by a constrained for a manuscript of submarine, as they neared the Guns of August," which told submarine, as they neared the Guns of August," which told submarine, the President, as chased the book rights from the content of the formation of the submarine into World baving said as they both McCall Corporation for an account of the enter the forbidden war I largely out of miscalcu-

The President vowed, Senator

was any choice, and not only The confrontation between until it surfaced, the Senator's of the crisis, President Kennedy that, if you hadn't acted, you the two great powers, Mr. Ken- article says. The correspond-Khrushchev. Mr. Kennedy-who was At- to the abyss of nuclear destruc-torney General at the time of tion and the end of mankind." "I think these few minutes ence has not been published in the 1962 crisis-said he told distinct phases. The first was the worried President. "I think these few minutes ence has not been published in the worried President. "I think these few minutes ence has not been published in the worried President. "I think these few minutes ence has not been published in the worried President. "I think these few minutes ence has not been published in the worried President. "I think these few minutes ence has not been published in the worried President. "I think these few minutes ence has not been published in the worried President. "I think these few minutes ence has not been published in the worried President. "I think these few minutes ence has not been published in the worried President. "I think these few minutes ence has not been published in the brink of a helper the world be an ence of the brink of a helper thelper the brink of a helper the brink of a helper the brink of a h on the brink of a holocause? by Mr. Khrushchev on the night Was it our error? A mistake? of Friday, Oct. 26, that indi-Was there something further cated to the Americans that he that should have been done? wanted to negotiate a solution. Similar excerpts from Pre-

"His hand went up to his mier Khrushchev's letter were face and covered his mouth published by Elie Abel in his He opened and closed his fist, book "The Missile Crisis" (J. B. His face seemed drawn, his Lippincott, 1966), which cov-eyes pained, almost gray. We ered the whole Cuban affair in stared at each other across detail.

Mr. Khrushchev called for a seconds, it was almost as statesmanlike approach and though no one else was there asserted that if the United States would give a pledge not to invade Cuba, the problem of the missiles would disappear. The letter, as printed in Mr. Abel's book, concluded:

"If you have not lost your est brother had been killed; of self-control, and sensibly con-personal times of strain and ceive what this might lead to, then, Mr. President, we and "The voices droned on but I you ought not now to pull on didn't seem to hear anything the ends of the rope in which you have tied the knot of war, because the more we pull, the tighter the knot will be tied. And a moment may come when the knot will be tied so tight that even he who tied it will not have the strength to untic it, and it will be necessary to cut that knot; and what that would mean is not about the details of the crisis,' showing United States deter- to our ships. There is no alter- for me to explain to you, bebut it provides some intimate mination to force the missiles native. Our commanders have cause you yourself understand been instructed to avoid hosili-perfectly of what terrible to the catastrophe of thermonuclear war, then let us not WASHINGTON DAILY NEWS

& 1 OCT 1968

RFK Says The Joint Chiefs Were Itching for War Over Cuba

The gravest moments of the Cuban missile crisis came when a U.S. aircraft carrier, according to newly published memoirs of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Mas

The memoirs, published from the Kennedy estate for more than $1 million and published yesterday in McCall's Magazine, added new details to the historical record of the showdown between the United States and Russia in October, 1962.

At the height of the crisis on Wednesday, Oct. 24, Sen. Kennedy reported, two Soviet cargo ships approached the U.S. Navy "quarantine" barrier set up across the Atlantic approaches to Cuba. A Russian sub was sailing submerged between the two ships.

SIGNAL

The U.S. Aircraft Carrier Esby sound equipment to surface and identify itself, Sen. Kennedy said. He said that if it refused, the Essex was to drop depth charges with "a small explosive" to force compliance.

Robert Kennedy described the appearance and thoughts of his brother President John F. Kennedy, at this moment:

of a holocaust? Was it our error? A mistake? Was there, something further that should have been done? Or not done? His hand went up to his face and covered his mouth. He you," Robert Kennedy replied. opened and closed his fist. His face seemed drawn, his eyes' pained, almost gray."

Robert Kennedy quoted the President as saying: "Isn't there some way we can avoid having our first exchange with a Cuba; how advance prepara-Russian submarine - almost tions for such an attack were anything but that?"

came that some of the Soviet miscalculation by both countries' ships headed toward Cuba had, stopped. President Kennedy ordered the Essex to do nothing but give the Russian vessels an opportunity to turn back: One immediate military action. stage of the crisis was over.

EMOTIONAL EXCHANGE

The memoirs also reveal some a confrontation nearly occurred new glimpses into the unbetween a Soviet submarine and published correspondence between President Kennedy and then' Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev. In one letter, President Kennedy told the Soviet leader: "I have not assumed that you or any other sane man would, in this nuclear age, deliberately plunge the world into war which it is crystal clear no country could win . . .

> In an emotional letter to the President Oct. 26, parts of which have appeared in print previously, Khrushchev said: "If people do not show wisdom, then in the final analysis they will come to a clash, like blind moles, and then reciprocal extermination will begin."

Robert Kennedy also reported that at one point in the crisis President Kennedy ordered U.S. missiles with atomic warheads in Turkey defused, sp that if the sex was to signal the submarine Russians attacked Turkey in response to the Cuban crisis, the President personally would have to give permission before they could be used.

> The article also told of a poignant moment when the two brothers, both later assassinated, were alone after the crisis had ended.

"Was the world on the brink, ham Lincoln's death after the Civil War, wryly commented: "This is the night I should go to the theater."

'If you do, I want to go with

MILITARY ANXIOUS

Robert Kennedy's account details how close the Cuban crisis came to actual war in several: ways - how military advisers pressed for an attack against made; and how, as the climax Minutes later, a message approached, the chances for grew.

> From the beginning, he said, the Joint Chiefs of Staff were unanimous in advocating

Sen. Kennedy wrote that Gen. Curtis LeMay, then Air Force Chief of Staff and now George Wallace's vice presidential candidate, argued strongly with the President that military attack was "essential."

When the President asked the i likely response of the Russians. Robert Kennedy wrote, Gen. LeMay insisted there would be none. The President was skeptical and told Gen. LeMay the Russians could not "do nothing", about a U.S. attack on Cuba that they would reply ither in Cuba or Berlin.

Son. Kennedy said his brother was distressed that, with the exception of Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, his military advisers "seemed to give so little consideration to the implications of the steps they suggested."

He said the experience emphasized the need for "civilian direction and control" and for raising "probing questions" to military recommendations.

Then Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara was an early ! advocate of the "blockade" tactic finally used, Sen. Kennedy reported.

ADVANCE STATISTICS

He described how other preparations were far advanced for anattack against Cuba should the blockade fail. Mr. Mcwnamara, for example, already had figured that 250,000 men would be required for an invasion, including 90,000 Marines and airborne forces, and 2000 air sorties against Cuban targets.

As the crisis unfolded, Robert Kennedy reported, his brother "was not sanguine about the results . . . Each hour the situation grew steadily more serious. The feeling grew that this cup was no going to pass and that a direct miptary confrontation between the two great nuclear powers was inevitable."

He recalled that when a U2 reconnaissance plane was shot down over Cuba, "at first there was almost unanimous agree-' ment that we had to attack early the next morning with bombers, and fighters and destroy the Sam (surface (mair missile) sites.

SOC. Y. DIA Thirdren Days.

Kennedy & Robert

Robert Kennedy said the first days of strategy meetings were. dominated by consideration of -'the "morw question" of whether, despite what had happened, the United States could attack a small nation like Cuba and still? maintain a moral position at home and in the eyes of the world.

His final conclusion was that war was averted by making it firmly clear to Russia that the United States would not tolerate an offensive missile base in Cuba, while at the same time refusing to push Russia to the extent that her own vital security was afford.

He quoted his brother, as saying: "If anybody is around to write after this, they are goingto understand that we made ev-' ery effort to find peace and ev-! ery effort to give our adversaries room to move. I am not going to push the Russiaf an inch beyond what is necessary." (UPD

1- 6 ... +, A1 MIAMI, FLA. C.1.A. 3.03 Cuba HERALD P-Krock, Arthur и _ UCT 973 1968 KennedysEdward S - 455,631

OXIDIZER VEHICLES P

A PROB HYDROGEN PEROXIDE TANKS

for version of the part of

ERECTOR ON LAUNCH PAD

CTOR ON LAURAN

VEHICLES

ERECTOR ON LAUNCH PAD

2 FUELING

Two New Books Will Tell Us What Went On Before We All Saw This

Behind The Missile Crisis

By AL BURT

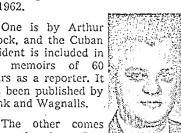

MISSILE PEADY BODGS

Net March 100

Herald Editorial Writer

TWO new books will tell us more of what was happening in Washington during the Cuban Missile Crisis of 1962.

One is by Arthur Krock, and the Cuban incident is included in his memoirs of 60 years as a reporter. It 🕅 has been published by Funk and Wagnalls.

from the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, a million dollar story Burt from inside the White House which will be published by Mc-Call's.

THE KROCK book tells us that the Central Intelligence Agency warned the late President Kennedy on August 10, 1962, that long-range missiles were being installed in Cuba.

During August and September, the book says, the CIA pressed for action but was opposed by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara.

It relates the play of influence among them as a decision was shaped. It was a high level affair and most of the nation knew nothing of what was taking place.

But a few did, and some of them were in South Florida.

×

THE MEMORY of storics told years later sticks in the mind. It. makes you think of credibility in terms that do not involve newspapers.

While the secretaries were debating the nation's course in Washington, the men who supplied much of their Cuban intelligence began to have agonizing doubts.

They believed the missiles were an imminent military danger to the United States, and could not understand why Washington did not react.

Weeks passed, and confirming reports piled up. Still nothing happened. The search for explanations became imaginative.

TENTS

It went from impatience to exasperation to doubts and then worse: was the country being betrayed?

A way was found to share the burden of fears. The information was leaked to newspapers. Cuban exile organizations virtually shouted it. A U.S. senator took it up.

Then came Oct. 22. President Kennedy challenged the Russians, and at home there was understanding, and unity of purpose during a crisis.

*

× *

MR. KROCK and the late Sen. Kennedy will tell us how high officials in Washington moved the chess men around.

Theirs will be significant tales, but no more intriguing in a human way than those of the little people who played the pawns.

27 September 1968 THE PRESS

EXCLUSIVES

Maximizing the Article

In early 1967, Senator Robert Kennedy began work on what was to have been a New York Times Magazine article based on his 1962 Cuban-missilecrisis notes. The Senator's outline called for a piece of about 5,000 words for which he would have received a standard $400 fee. But by the time the work was finished about a year ago, it was five times its intended length and, in the Senator's view, might have appeared too politically self-serving in a pre-election year. So he put it away and never collected his $400.

Last week all rights to the 25,000word manuscript were sold to the Mc-Call Corp. The initial payment was $1,000,000, probably the highest figure ever for a piece of its length. Depending on the bidding for book rights, the final figure could be even higher.

McCall Corp.'s Editor in Chief Norman Cousins promised that the article in the November McCall's would contain never published information on "the thinking and feelings at that time of the President and Attorney General, \mathbf{N} the estimates and reports of the CIA." In addition, it would tell of Security Council deliberations and "the significant secret meetings between the Attorney General and Soviet Ambassador Dobrynin." Other editors who had seen the manuscript emphasized other virtues. "The thing that comes across," said one, "is the terribly close relationship between the two Kennedy brothers. It's not as great for what it tells you as for who is saying it and the relationship it describes."

Ted Sorensen, who represented the estate in the negotiations and did "very minor editing," insisted that all of the actual writing was the work of the late Senator. Asked why the Kennedy fam-, ily had consented to the sale and its attendant publicity, Sorensen said that the executors (Mrs. Ethel Kennedy, Senator Edward Kennedy and Mrs. Pat Kennedy Lawford) "are required by law to maximize the estate, particularly when there are eleven minor children."

- COLUMNISTS

Memoirs of a Mourner

His furled umbrella and powerful cigar are familiar to every newsman in Washington. He is a regular participant in the lunchtime poker-dice games at the bar of the Metropolitan Club. His counsel has been sought-or pointedly ignored-by every President since William Howard Taft. Woodrow Wilson often talked out his problems with him during the Paris peace talks that ended World War I. F.D.R. once regarded him as a "Hoover agent," twice tried unsuccessfully to get him fired. Both Jack and Bobby Kennedy submitted the manuscripts of their first books to him for critical comment. To his secretary, Laura Waltz, his ponderous prose is "notoriously bad." To his former colleagues at the New York Times, he is "Mr. Krock." Says Washington Bureau Chief Tom Wicker, "I wouldn't dream of calling him Arthur."

Krue K.

Arthur Krock, 80, has been the courtly, if usually critical, dean of the Washington press corps for longer than most correspondents can remember. An active reporter from 1906 to his retirement two years ago, he has been closer, longer, to the power centers of U.S. politics than perhaps any other man, journalist or politician, living or dead. He mourned most of what he saw. In onig under for the Great Depression, and answers Roosevelt's New Deal-which he at first supported-of making the Depression worse instead of better. The confrontation between Russia and the U.S. that has dominated the past two decades would never have taken place, he believes, had not F.D.R. been naive about the Kremlin's intentions to "dominate the world."

gannedy, Robert

Krock laments the deterioration of the country's moral and political fiber, the inflation that destroys savings, the pressures toward "total integration" of blacks and whites, the introduction (by Kennedy and Johnson) of a "welfare state subsidized from Washington." He considers it an inexcusable sin that Kennedy and Johnson committed the U.S. to a land war in Asia. Above all, Krock

AVERELL HARRIMAN, JOHN KENNEDY & KROCK (1953) Was F.D.R. naive? Did L.B.J. sin?

Line, published this week by Funk & Wagnalls, Krock details the complicated reasons for his pessimistic views.

Spurious Liberalism. He was born to a genteel family in post-Civil War Kentucky. His mother, he recalls, "had been brought up, like all Southern girls of her class, to do nothing," and he himself was raised "in the shadow of the Lost Cause." Admits Krock: "I looked upon the Confederate veterans as my boyhood heroes." Thus, although he considers himself a "Democratic liberal," he has been increasingly horrified at "the men and events that have reshaped our political system for the worse in the name of a 'liberalism' both spurious of ancestry and destruc-tive in practice."

His observations are not particularly new. If Wilson had been less unbending, he believes, he might have persuaded the Senate to go along with the League of Nations and thereby perhaps have averted World War II. He blames Coolidge, rather than Hoover, his memoirs, Sixty Years on the Firing bemoans the "transmutation" of U.S. democracy into a "judicial autocracy" in which the Supreme Court has assumed "overlordship of the government and all the people to fit the political philosophy of the current majority."

> To some extent, Krock himself takes the blame for the Supreme Court's liberal outlook. It was he who suggested, in 1939, the appointment of Justice William O. Douglas, one of his closest Washington friends, who turned out to be one of the Court's most unyielding liberals.

Who Was Kleist? When Krock joined The Times, in 1927, he was already a leading figure in American journalism. He had been shot at while covering Kentucky elections for the Associated Press in 1909, challenged to a duel for insulting a French newspaperman in Paris in 1918 ("Somehow, I managed to crawl out of that fix"). As assistant to Publisher Ralph Pulitzer on the old New York World, he was assigned to "ride herd on Herbert Swope," the paper's imperious editor, and to 23 September 1968

62 Cuba Stories Sti	r 68 Fears

P-Greenes Ferry Kennedy, Robert

6.1.A. 1101 Mc Cone, Joh

c.1. A. 1. 03 Kent, Sherma

National Estimate.

C.1. A - 2.01 055:24 -F

AKerek, Arthur

By JERRY GREENE Washington, Sept. 22 (NEWS Bureau) — A replay of Cuban missile crisis decisions in 1962 — with more controversy promised next month threw the Washington intelligence community into an uproar today.

The intelligence experts were already disturbed over the announcement that the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's version of the critical hours preceding the U.S.-Russian confrontation over installation of missiles in Cuba would be published. They noted the announcement, by McCall's magazine, said information in the 25,000-word Kennedy account of the crisis would include data from Central Intelligence Agency reports.

Reviews and news stories pub- no review for security purposes lished today concerning a new was necessary, book by Arthur Krock, retired It was learned today that columnist and bureau chief of The McCone's warnings were the re-New York Times in Washington, sult of his own analysis and revived fears that the missile opinion and that there had been crisis controversy would burst disagreement within the CIA. paigns.

Krock included in his memoirs decisions were made.

ing to the decisions.

nedy on Aug. 10, 1962, that Rus- tion-and barely a month after sian technicians were building the Krock book's publication. medium-range ballistic missile installations in Cuba. McCone repeated his warnings persistently until finally, in mid-October, lowlevel flights produced photographic confirmation of his fears. The Krock book said that Mc-Cone's recommendation for the reconnaissance flights was opposed by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Robert McNamara, former secretary of defense. Theodore Sorenson, special counsel to President Kennedy, who announced the sale of Sen. Kennedy's recollections on the crisis, said that he, McNamara and Fred Dutton, former undersecretary of state, had read the Kennedy manuscript and decided into the current presidential cam- over the importance of the missile installations during August, of 1962.

McCone Disputed

a detailed account of CIA enormy. to warn President Kennedy of The Office of National Low-the Cuban missile threat 10 mates in the CIA, then headed by Sherman Kent, since retired, did not accept the McCone theories, Similarly, McCone was un-It is expected in intelligent able to convince the National Incircles here that the forthcom- telligence Board, which included, ing magazine article by Sen. representatives of the CIA, the Kennedy, to be published Oct. State and Defense departments. 25, will present a somewhat dif- that the sites being prepared in ierent version of the events lead. Cuba were intended for offensive missiles.

In any event, the intelligence McCone was so intensely con-experts, principally those in the cerned over the potential threat CIA, are caught in the middle of that he took time off from his, a potential row over information honeymoun in September 1962 to be a potential row over information honeymoun in September 1962 to which was available to the top send personal memos back to levels of government. CIA spokes- CIA headquarters, urging further Rusk, McNamara Balked The experts here were puzzled

In his account, Krock wrote over the urgency and speed in that former CIA Director John volved in the publication of the McCone warned President Ken- 10 days before the Nov. 5 elec

20 September 1968

Robert Kennedy's Account of Missile Crisis Sold for

By HARRY GILROY

A 25,000-word account of the Cuban missile crisis written last year by Robert F. Kennedy was sold yesterday by 'the Senator's estate to the Mc-Call Corporation for an ad-vance of S1-million. It will appear in the November issue of McCall's, which will be on news stands Oct. 22.

The meoir was written at the request of The New York Times Magazine. Mr. Kennedy began work on a magazine article in April, 1967, but in October informed The Times that he did not wish to release his account because it might be suggested that he was using it in a bid for the Presidency.

Norman Cousins, editor in chief of the McCall Corporation described the $1-million advance at a news conference as probably the highest amount ever paid for a manuscript of that length.

The sale was announced at the Fifth Avenue Club, 10 East 56th Street, by Henry É. Bowes, president of McCall's, and Theodore C. Sorensen, lawyer for the estate's executors - Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy, Senator Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Mrs. Patricia Kennedy Lawford, widows, brother and sister of the slain Senator, who was Attorney General during the crisis.

Mr. Sorensen, who was Spe-cial Assistant to President Kennedy, indicated that there were facts in the manuscript that had not been printed before, notably in regard to correspondence between President Kennedy and Premier Nikita S. Khruschchev of the Soviet Union.

Asked if the memoir indicated the then Attorney General regarded the settlement of the crisis — when the missile sites in Cuba were dismantled and the missiles returned to the So-viet Union - as "a victory for the United States," Mr. Sor-been "a rise in bidding from ensen said: "He regarded it as the start." ensen said: "He regarded it as a victory for world peace." When asked for details in kept detailed notes on the criwhen writing his account. Mr. article Wednesday morning publishing details. Differences Sorensen said he wished to cm- "when it appeared probable will be arbitrated by Mr. Cou-phasize that Mr. Kennedy had that a deal would be reached." sins and Mr. Sorensen. sis and had used the material had never even edited it. Mr. a normal press run of 8.5- news conference that he had Sorensen added that he had million copies. done some slight editing.

, the article, Mr. Sorensen brush

The New York Times

Mr. Cousins said after the not known until yesterday

Theodore C. Sorensen, attorney for estate of Robert F. Kennedy, and Norman Cousins, rear, editor in chief of McCall Corporation, tell of sale of Senator's document.

book publishers as well as Mc- ization, films, television and Call's. He declined to give de- recordings. Two New York book pub-tails other than that there had lishers are reported to be

The contract was completed heavy bidders for the manuwill all have to wait with bat-ed breath to read McCall's." and returned to New York with He said Mr. Kennedy had the document in the afternoon. In the approval of adver-tion way and the fact that Mrs. Ken-nedy estate approval of adver-laddition to the 10 in the family. Mr. Cousins said the maga-tising copy, excerpts for serialzine began to set type on the ization, photographs and other written the account himself and He said the issue would have

In addition to the $1-million morning that the manuscript

Mr. Sorensen, who is an edi-dvance, the Kennedy estate began as an article for The tor at large of the Saturday will share in the sale of sub-Review, a McCall's magazine, said he had offered the manu-script to other magazine and clude book publication, serial-azine of Oct. 22, 1967, the fifth anniversary of President Kennedy's announcement that Soviet missile sites were being prepared in Cuba.

$1-Million

Senator Kennedy indicated ajdes that he would write the articles and asked The Times for suggestions on topics top be covered. On pril 27, he expressed through Frank Mankiewicz, his press secretary, general agreement with an outline submitted by The Times Magazine.

The outline recommended a length of 3,500 words, or up to 5,000 words. On Aug. 22, 1967, the Senator's office reported he was working on the article with some 5,000 words' on paper and the story only half told.

In October, after repeated inquiries, the Magazine was informed by Mr. Mankiewicz that the Senator was reluctant to release the article. The Times had been told that the article was 25,00 words long and was preparing to devote most of the issue of Oct. 22 issue to presenting it.

Senator Kennedy sent word that he felt publication of the article might make him appear to be using his inside knowledge of events in President Kennedy's administration to advance himself for the 1968 Presidential nomination.

The article was found among Senator Kennedy's effects after his death. Two months ago, The Times Magazine sought to find out through Mr. Mankiewicz if the account might now be released.

When Mr. Sorensen said this week that the manuscript was for sale, The Times declined to bid.

Asked yesterday what disposition would be made of the proceeds, Mr. Sorensen said that the money would go to the executors. "It is their duty," he said, a victory for world peace." The contract was completed script, but Mr. Bowes said: "to maximize the estate, par-when asked for details in late Wednesday night. Mr. Sor-the article, Mr. Sorensen brush enson took the contract to "The contest for such rights is aside questions, saying: "We Washington for the executors' only beginning this minute." The contract for the manu-ring to the fact that Mrs. Ken-ring to the fact that Mrs. Ken20 September 1968

Robert

4.01.1 McCall'S

7 1

cle on Cub

Soc.

Robert Kenned

NEW YORK (AP) NEW YORK (AP) — A detail, but said the manuscript 25,000-word article about the Cu-contained new information about ban missile crisis, written by the the "thinking and feeling at the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, time" of both John and Robert has been sold to McCall's maga- Kennedy, as well as correspondzine for $1 million plus reprint ence between the late President and broadcast rights.

Norman Cousins, editor in chief of McCall's, announced the sale at a nounce conference who were consist. sale at a news conference yes-terday. He said the cash price for the manuscript — $40 a word was the largest ever paid for such material such material.

Cousins said the magazine years ago. containing the article would ap-Soviet confrontation over Cuba. telligence Agency, and an ac He said the issue would have a count of deliberations by the Na-normal press run of 8.5 million copies.

Theodore C. Sorensen, an aide to both Sen. Kennedy and his brother, the late President John F. Kennedy, said Robert Kennedy, then attorney general, had kept detailed notes on the crisis, which ended when the Russians dismantled their Cuban missile sites and took the missiles back to the Soviet Union.

Sorensen said Kennedy began writing the article at the request of the New York Times magazine in April 1967, but later decided not to submit it for publication because it was too long and because some persons might feel he was using it in a bid for the presidency.

The article was found in the assassinated senator's personal effects and was sold to McCall's after bids were taken from various publishers, Sorensen said.

Henry E. Bowes, president of McCall's Corp., said two other key figures in the crisis — former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and former British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan — are contributing introductions to the manuscript.

The purchase agreement, concluded in Washington yesterday morning, gives McCall's all rights to the manuscript, including book publication, serialization, film, television and recordings.

The estate retains the right to approve advertising copy, excerpts for serialization, photographs and other publishing de-tails. Bowes said "agreed-upon arbitration procedures will come into play" in the event of a disa-greement between the publisher and the estate.

Sorensen refused to disclose contents of the article in the frontation in a book several

He said it also contained prepear on newsstands Oct. 22, the viously unpublished estimates sixth anniversary of the U.S.- | and reports from the Central In-

5 OC. 4.01. 2 Thirteen Day

p-Oborderfer, Don Kunnedy, Robert

c. 1. A. 3. 03 Cuba

RFK Cuba Memoir Sold for $1 Million

By Don Oberdorfer Washington Post Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 19-Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's personal memoir of the 1962 Cuban missile crisis, found among his papers after his assassination, was sold by his executors today to Me-Call Corp. for $1 million.

McCall's magazine will publish the 25,000-word memoir, titled "Thirteen Days," in its issue appearing Oct. 22, on the sixth anniversary of the confrontation with the Soviet Union.

McCall editor-in-chief Norman Cousins, announcing the purchase here, said the : manuscript contained "far more information than has previously been published on the thinking and feelings: at that time of the President (John F. Kennedy) and Attorney General (Robert Ken-Incdy), the estimates and reports of the CIA, deliberations and interplay of personalities around the Natinal Security Council table, significant secret meetings between the Attorney General and Soviet Ambassador. Dobrynin, the contents of President." the Kennedy - Khrushchev correspondence and the milipreparations undertary taken by the United States."

Theodore behalf of the Senator's es- a foreign country. tate. Sorensen also said published information in the -memoir.

Apparently no state secrets are involved, however. Sorensen said that former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, former Assistant Secretary of State Fred Dutton and himself had determined that Government security clearance of the manuseript prior to its publication was unnecessary.

According to Sorensen, Sen. Kennedy dictated his memoir into a tape recorder about a year ago, working from diarics and other detailed records.

At the time, Kennedy felt that publication would be inappropriate, Sorensen reported. The decision to publish now was made by the three executors of the Senator's estate-Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy, Sen. Edward Ken-Fnedy and Mrs. Patricia Kennedy Lawford.

Major magazines and publishing houses were invited to bid on the manuscript last week. Sorensen said the bidding process was designed "to maximize the income to an estate with 11, minor children." Book publication and a possible motion picture are in prospect later. The publishing contract gives the Kennedy estate the power of approval over "appropriate and tasteful standards" in advertising copy, excerpts for serialization and other details. This was intended to avoid the sort of literary battle that erupted when the Kennedy family objected to parts of William Manchester's book on the John F. Kennedy as-; "Death of a sassination,

Senate Urged to Back Treaty on Astronauts Associated Press

C. Sorensen, The Johnson Administration who was White House coun- appealed yesterday for Senate sel at the time and who has approval in this session of written his own memoir of Congress of a treaty providthe Kenndey Administra- ing for the rescue and return tion, negotiated the sale on of any astronauts downed in

The request was submitted there is much hitherto un- to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by representatives of the State and Defense Departments and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The treaty, signed formally. last April 22 in Moscow, London and Washington, already has been ratified by the Soviet Union, the official news agency Tass reported. The Presid-ium of the Supreme Soviet took the action Tuesday, a Tass editor said.

2

P-Dick, William Gairrison, Tim C.I.A.4-NewOrleans P-Lane, Mark King, Martin Lu Ther Kennedy, Robert F. Orig. under han e.

Dr. King and Senator Kennedy are linked in the same pattern of assassination.

"It seems clear to me that the slayings were organized by the same people. I believe these people are the Central Intelligence Agency.

"Why? Because they have a great deal of power to lose if the war mar chine is stopped. More lives must be in danger. I sincerely hope that what happened to Lee Harvey Oswald will not happen to the assassin of Senator Kennedy.

the CIA.

> "But one must fear for the assassin's safety."

> Lane said he fears that the life of New Orleans

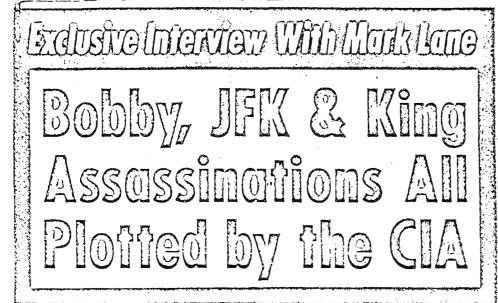

District Attorney James Garrison may be in danger.

Garrison is convinced there was a powerful conspiracy behind President Kennedy's murder. He has conducted his own investigation and has already charged two men with conspiracy in Lane said: "Garrison's life must be the legal methods presently being used to try and stop him proceeding with,

NATIONAL ENQUIRER

July 14 1968

By WILLIAM DICK

"The assassination of Senator Robert F. Kennedy was plotted by the same people who ordered the murders of President Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King.

"All three killings were ordered by the U.S. war machine. U.S. Central Intelligence Agency," said attorney Mark Lane.

"Rush to Judgment," in criticism of the Warren Commission's findings on the same people. assassination of President Kennedy, said that all three men were ordered shot for the same reason - their opposition to the U.S. war machine.

And, Lane said, Senator Kennedy knew his life was in danger and told his aides:

'There are guns between me and the White House.

On June 7, two days after Senator Kennedy's murder, Lane related to The ENQUIRER:

"I believe that Senator Kennedy was killed because of his opposition to the

"There seems little doubt that his brother, President Kennedy, and Dr. JFK's murder. Lane, author of the best-selling book, Martin Luther King, were killed for the same reason - and on orders of the in danger if he succeeds in beating

> "If police are faced with a series of robberies in which the same method is used, they suspect it is the same group committing them.

"The deaths of President Kennedy,

$2.1 ÷91 LOS ANGELES FREE PRESS 19 April 1968

ART.

UNITED

STATES

LEN'L

É

BECAUSE=

I, KT

MARK LANE

For more than four years since the death of President Kennedy I have declined to make public an analysis of the strange conduct of Robert Kennedy vis-a-vis the assassination and its aftermath. Although I have met with Robert Kennedy in the past, and worked with him for the election of his brother in 1960, my reluctance to discuss his odd behavior has had little to do with any personal feeling toward him or previous contact with him. The death of a brother may be a deeply moving experience - one which leaves scars that strangers or near stranger best not disturb. So long as Robert Kennedy was but one of a hundred senators, and but one of a thousand other officials who remained silent about the fraudulent governmental explanation of the event, it might appear that the reason for singling him out for special disdain or condemnation might be his familial relationship with the deceased.

During much of this period Robert Kennedy has permitted his name to be used in support of some rather unreal conclusions. This was accomplished first by his silence, and when that proved to be insufficient, by his selfproclaimed ignorance coupled with his public acceptance of the Warren Report.

For some years I have lectured about the assassination at universities in the United States and Europe. Following each of those. more than two hundred lectures was a question period, and I think it safe, therefore, to assert that I have some knowledge of the questions that occur. The trend established by the questions can. in fact, be closely mapped. During the first year following the murder, the leading question, always asked, sometimes asked more than once in variable forms was: "How about Earl Warren's integrity? Certainly a man of that integrity could not, would not, sign his name to a document ... I am sorry to have to report that questions designed to offer Mr. Warren's integrity as a positive factor have not been raised for the last two to three years.

Taking its place has been the refrain, "Certainly Robert Kennedy, with all his money " as if, I imagine, survivors in a lower income group might be less concerned with the cause of death. The refrain goes on, "He WAS the Attorney General at the time. He is said to be, although I do not know this as a fact, somewhat ruthless." It is marvelous to observe the line being drawn rather than offend one in power or even one who might one day be: "--- and even he accepts the Warren Report."

P-Lane, Mark

King, Martin

ARA

OF

Garrison, Jim C.I.H. 4 - NewOrleans

Luther

Ongunder

Lane

Kennedy, Robert

Yet, in the face of these temptations put before me with evil regularity I have refused to offer an analysis of Robert's role. I reasoned that while the questioners isolated Robert Kennedy from other corrupt persons in public office, my answer might, well be published without the

Continued

Kennedy, Robert de Vosioli, Philippe

CHICAGO, ILLINO(S TRIBUNE

M- 832,146 s-1,158,975 APR 30 1968

CEPORT BOBBY - EEARD OF SPY RING IN FRANCE

New York, April 29 [Reuters] —A top Russian intelligence defector told Robert Kennedy, then attorney general, of the existence of a soviet spy ring in President Charles de Gaulle's entourage in three meetings in 1962, Look magazine reported today.

The meetings were arranged after the Russian, a former headquarters chief of the soviet intelligence organization [KGB] balked after several weeks of questioning by the central intelligence agency [CIA].

V

The disclosure led the French intelligence chief in Washington, Philippe Thiraud de Vosjoli, to resign his post and remain in the United States after his superiors allegedly failed to take action against soviet infiltration.

÷.,

P-Fritcheyo Clayton SEUSDAY P-Alsop, Stewart 17 APR 1968 Soc. 4.01. 2 The clenter Kennedy, Robert Mecurthy, Engene c.1.p. 1.01 Dulles, All CLAYTON FRITCHEY Diher Issues Besides the War

Washington-Both Sen. Eugene McCarthy and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy at one time had doubts about challenging Lyndon Johnson for the Democratic presidential nomination because the President was in a position to eliminate the peace issue whenever he saw fit.

After McCarthy took the plunge, however, he gradually discovered there was plenty to talk about besides Vietnam. He also found much of the opposition to Johnson was personal and independent of the war policy. After McCarthy's success in the New Hampshire primary, it was obvious that a peace move on the part of the President would no longer make it impossible for other Democrats to sustain a eampaign against him for the nomination. So two things happened: Kennedy came in and Johnson went out.

S

There seems little doubt that even before New Hampshire the President was thinking of retiring, but also there is little doubt that McCarthy and Kennedy would still be in the race today even if Johnson's bombing cutback had not been accompanied by his retirement statement. By the time the President made his historic announce-fiment, his rivals had already begun to broaden the scope. of their challenge well beyond just the war issue, and in recent days this tendency has become still more marked.

Some historians will surely surmise that Johnson would have had a clear field for re-nomination if he had made his peace move before McCarthy took the plunge against him. Also, it is quite possible that, before New Hampshire. McCarthy might have withdrawn if the President had defused the war issue.

All that is water over the dam now. McCarthy is, in fact, beginning to question the seriousness of the Johnson peace bid. He notes the quibbling over a negotiating site, the continued bombing of North Vietnam on a heavy scale, and the launching of the biggest U.S. ground offensives of the year.

Aside from the war, however, both he and Kennedy have been pressing against other exposed nerves. The death of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., for instance, has focused fresh attention on the President's coolness to the recommendations of his own commission on civil disorders, and his earlier brushoff of similar proposals after last year's riots.

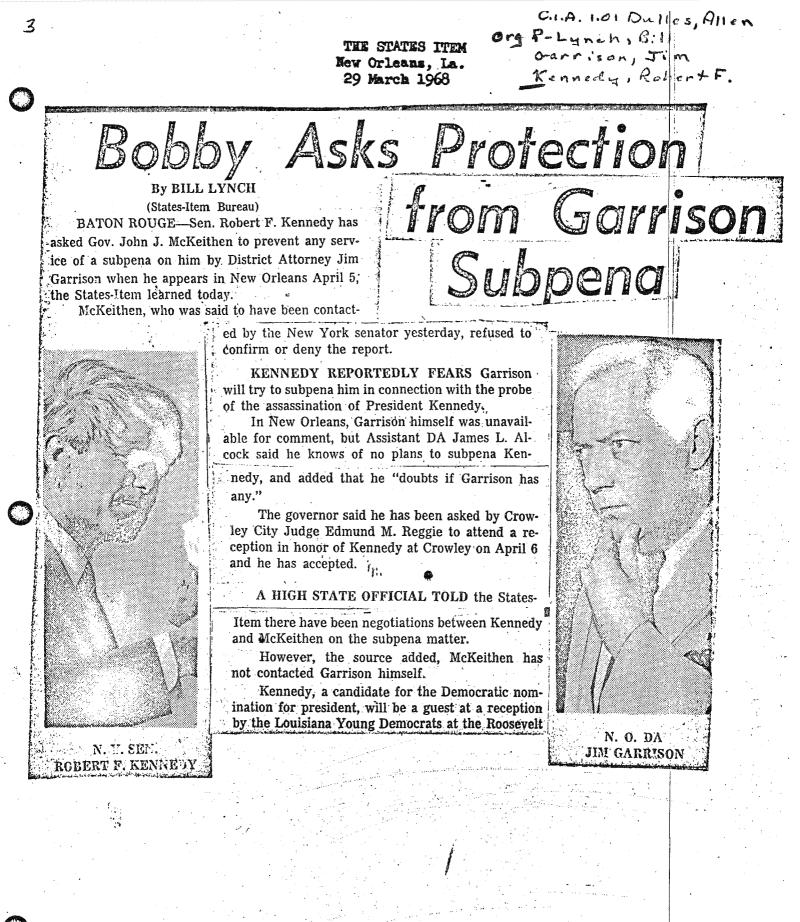

McCarthy seems to have hit political paydirt with his pledge (if elected) to put a tight rein on the "CIA, FBI, A and the draft boards under General Hershey." The cheers this generated indicates how the country has changed since 1960. After John F. Kennedy's election, his first major appointments were the renaming of J. Edgar Hoover as director of the FBI and Allen Dulles as head of the CIA. He came to regret this, and following the CIA's Bay of Pigs disaster, he removed Dulles.

Robert Kennedy is no more enchanted with the FBI and CIA than McCarthy is. He is one of the few attorneys general who has not quailed before Hoover. If he becomes President it is not likely he would entrust civil rights investigations to a director who referred to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. as "the most notorious liar in the country." The Bay of Pigs disillusioned Sen. Kennedy with the CIA as much as it did his older brother, so it, too, is in for control if either the Minnesotan of New Yorker is elected.

Actually, in a quiet way, the CIA has already been a considerably tamed. In a forthcoming book on "People" and Power in Political Washington," Stewart Alsop gives an inside account of how the spy organization has lost some of its old derring-do.

His absorbing report concludes that the clique of "Bold Easterners" who planned and executed so many of the agency's most melodramatic operations has gradually been displaced by less adventurous spirits. He rather regretfully calls it the "triumph of the prudent professionals." Anyhow, the CIA has not overthrown any for-, eign governments for some time now. So far as we know, that is.

Continued