Mrs. Maas has owned Robbie's Restaurant for approximately five years. On May 16, 1968, she was contacted by a man who identified himself as J. Hernandez, head of the Pomona group for Kennedy. He requested that she provide the facilities of her upstairs banquet hall for a political luncheon at which Senator Kennedy was to appear as speaker. Arrangements were made for 300 sitdown luncheon guests and for 100 standees. The standees were to be admitted just before Kennedy was to begin speaking as Kennedy was not lunching.

After the arrangements had been made, she heard nothing more from Hernandez, or any member of the local Kennedy party. She waited until the morning of May 20, and then contacted a member of the Pomona Police Department. She was informed that the Police Department had no advance knowledge of the luncheon and, therefore, no arrangements had been made for crowd control.

By 11 a.m., she estimated there were approximately two to three thousand people outside her restaurant and the restaurant inside was full. Just before Kennedy arrived, the Police Department assigned ten to fourteen uniform officers to assist in controlling the crowd both inside and outside the restaurant. This individual appeared to be coming out of the Embassy Room and was carrying a package wrapped in a dark blue canvas cloth under his right arm. What appeared to be the wooden stock of a rifle protruded out of the blue canvas. The individual was in sight for about five seconds and then ran down the corridor of the hotel. This individual appeared unusual to her because of his wearing apparel, long hair, and long sideburns which were not characteristic of those present at the hotel. Kline informed her that he had seen the same person on the Frank Reynolds News Program on ABC television. On June 7, 1968, she viewed the news program in question and pointed out an unidentified man that appeared to be carrying a roll of posters or similar paper. "Treatment Room #2 was set up in anticipation for the patient's arrival. The other nurses prepared the room as I was still trying to complete the patient care in Treatment Room #4."

"At approximately 12:35 a.m., I heard a commotion in the hall. I looked out and saw the newsmen fighting to get pictures of the patient. Mr. Tinch (Hospital Detail) succeeded in getting the newsmen away from the stretcher and the patient was taken into Treatment Room #2."

"When I entered the Treatment Room, the patient was already on the treatment table. Dr. Bazilauskas asked for a stethoscope and I complied. At this time, Mrs. Eby and Mrs. Lightsey were placing the patient on the heart-lung machine and Dr. Bazilauskas was performing external cardiac massage. Dr. Bazilauskas used the stethoscope to listen for the heart beat and asked for adrenalin. I then prepared the adrenalin with the cardiac needle. While I was preparing the adrenalin, I heard Mrs. Kennedy say, 'cut them off.' She was referring to the patient's coat and shirt. When the patient came in the shirt was unbuttoned. I took the adrenalin to Dr. Bazilauskas who was still listening to the chest. Dr. Bazilauskas stated that he did not need the adrenalin in the heart but to give it subcutaneously. I walked to the right shoulder to give the medication but he was wounded there. At that time, I noted there was no active bleeding from the shoulder or head wounds. I walked around to the left shoulder and gave the adrenalin in the left shoulder."

"Dr. Holt instructed Mrs. Lightsey to call the Good Samaritan Hospital and make arrangements for Senator Kennedy's hospitalization. Dr. Holt also instructed Mrs. Lightsey to call Doctor's Cuneo, Andler and another doctor. Mrs. Eby asked Mrs. Kennedy if she wanted a priest for her husband. Mrs. Kennedy said, "Yes, there is one in the hall." Mrs. Kennedy left the room and returned with a man, who was not dressed in a priest's habit. Mrs. Kennedy sat down on a stool at the patient's right side with the man assisting her."

"Dr. Holt, with the assistance of Mrs. Mejia and I, took a blood sample for typing and cross matching from the left cubital space. The dextran had been started in the left upper arm by Dr. Holt."

"Mrs. Eby took the blood sample and it was sent to Good Samaritan Hospital by police radio car, "Stat." While I was holding the patient's left arm, I noted the eyes were open and fixed. The patient's respirations at this time were about twenty to twenty-two per minute. Dr. Bazilauskas ordered the heart-lung machine removed at this time as the patient was doing well on his own. I disconnected the machine and Dr. Bazilauskas and Mrs. Eby held the patient up as I removed the heart-lung machine, the blood pressure cuff and upper clothing. Mrs. Eby had put on a head dressing and eye patches with ointment to protect the patient's eyes. The patient was given continuous oxygen."

"Mrs. Lightsey came back into the treatment room and informed

Dr. Holt that Good Samaritan Hospital and Dr. Cuneo were ready for the patient. Mrs. Kennedy was quite concerned about the noise in the hall and treatment room. The patient was covered with a sheet and Mrs. Lightsey and I removed the lower clothing. Mrs. Mejia and I searched the clothing. There was no property or shoes on admission. As we were wrapping the clothing, Mrs. Kennedy said, 'Throw them away.' To my knowledge the clothing was sent with the patient to Good Samaritan Hospital."

"As I was about to wash the patient's right hand Mrs. Kennedy said, 'Don't wash that. Those are old.' I observed old scratches on the right hand plus the blood. I complied with her wishes and did not wash the hand."

"Dr. Holt and Mrs. Kennedy were talking. Mrs. Kennedy was reassured by Mrs. Eby and Dr. Holt that the patient would receive good care at the Good Samaritan Hospital. Dr. Holt told Mrs. Kennedy that he would accompany her and the Senator to Good Samaritan Hospital. At this time, a Negro man came into the room with a stethoscope around his neck. I asked Mrs. Eby who he was. Mrs. Eby asked the man, and he stated that he was Dr. Miller and had been at the scene of the accident. He tried to interfere with the patient's treatment and was informed that arrangements had been made and his assistance was not needed."

"The patient was moved to the ambulance stretcher. He was given continuous oxygen and was having continuous intravenous solutions. Dr. Holt, Mrs. Kennedy, Mr. Van Ness and Mr. Nine, accompanied the patient to Good Samaritan Hospital. After the patient left the room, I noted that a priest in full habit was standing in the room. I was informed that the patient had received the 'Last Rites'."

Sirhan returned to work at the Granja Vista Del Rio Ranch two weeks later and then noted poor movement in his left eye. Doctor Nugent's examination reflected that Sirhan's vision was better than normal but that his left upper eyelid showed a very small scar remnant. He concluded that Sirhan had an excellent pair of eyes and there was no indication of further treatment, complications or resultant disabilities.
