She and her husband watched Kennedy leave the platform and walk into the kitchen. She then heard the sounds of the shooting.

She described two prior incidents that she believed might be related to the investigation. While in Senator Kennedy's room prior to the speech, she answered the telephone and a male voice stated, "I am going to do everything in my power to keep Kennedy from becoming president." She described the voice as a plain voice with no accent.

On May 22, 1968, a letter was received at Kennedy Headquarters and it stated, "All of the FBI and Secret Service cannot keep me from killing him. He'll die like his brother." The crowd began backing towards him and he heard the statement "He's been hurt, he has been shot. Get a doctor." He looked through the open doors and saw a group of people struggling and another group tending the Senator. He notified the hotel switchboard that Kennedy had been shot and while talking saw Doctor Ross Miller enter the kitchen. He heard a kitchen employee, who supposedly shook hands with the Senator just as the shooting began say, "He's crazy, I talked to him and told him not to do it. He saw a male individual running out of the Embassy Room carrying a three foot long circular blue roll of paper approximately eight or nine inches in diameter. This struck him as peculiar since there were hundreds of people in the lobby and they were all standing still. At the time this individual came out of the Embassy Room, Weaver did not know about the shooting.

Weaver in a later interview looked at a photograph of Michael Wayne and could not identify the man running through the lobby as Wayne. He did, however, state that the package carried by the runner and the package in the photo with Wayne appeared identical.

Sirhan was hired and worked from Sunday through Friday and was paid $2.00 an hour. Sirhan's duties consisted of stocking shelves, handling fresh vegetables, making deliveries to his other stores in Monterey Park and Downey, and occasionally took money to the bank. Sirhan was a capable employee and got along well with other employees and always presented a neat and courteous appearance to customers. He noted, however, that Sirhan seemed to resent being told what to do and on occasion became aggressive and ill tempered. Weidner received the impression that Sirhan resented the authority and discipline and had an inferiority complex resulting from him being physically small.

Sirhan would occasionally discuss politics without referring to any particular politician or official. He would discuss Middle Eastern affairs and express a strong dislike for Israel and the Jewish people. From time to time Sirhan was exceptionally bitter about the United States support of Israel and commented that when he was young, he saw some Israelis killing Arab children. Sirhan also told Weidner that he felt violence was the only way Negroes could obtain their rights and was sympathetic to the poor people and appeared to resent affluence. On one occasion he asked Sirhan if he were a United States citizen, and Sirhan replied that he had not become a citizen because there was no liberty in this country, and further he did not believe in God.

On February 28, 1968, he told Sirhan to make deliveries at Monterey Park and Downey stores in that order. Sirhan made the deliveries in reverse order and Weidner mentioned it to him. Sirhan became upset and stalked out of the store indicating he was quitting the job. Sirhan returned and commented that he would stay two weeks as per prior oral notice of termination of the employment agreement. He had another disagreement with Sirhan on March 7, 1968, and Weidner called the Pasadena Police Department. The police talked briefly with Sirhan and then he left. He received the notice from the Labor Commission and appeared at a hearing on March 20, 1968, and was required by the Commissioner of the hearing to pay Sirhan approximately $150.00 for wages due and severance pay. This meeting allegedly was called because Weisberg's informant believed Robert F. Kennedy's life was in danger due to a statement previously made by the Senator.

Mr. Weisberg stated he met with his informant again on June 10, 1968, while in New York City and this time the informant stated that three weeks prior to the assassination he had received information that an attempt would be made on Robert F. Kennedy in California, and the attempt would take place while a large mass of people surrounded the Senator. The informant reported relaying this information to the Kennedy campaign, but they were unconcerned. Weisberg stated he would not reveal the name of his informant and would only say the person was a man in his forties, the son of famous show business parents, who shuns publicity and was currently involved in "digging out the truth concerning the John F. Kennedy assassination." Weisberg stated he was without funds and requested the investigator to arrange television interviews for him in Los Angeles so he could receive some remuneration.

to a hospital after falling off a horse and had remained in critical condition for several weeks. This incident resulted in Sirahn being partially blind in his left eye and having severe headaches. He added that Sirhan underwent a complete personality change after the accident, becoming a loner who was resentful toward anyone who had wealth.

Mr. Welch was re-interviewed August 29, 1968, and was advised the purpose of the interview was to clarify some of the statements he had made on the prior occasion. Mr. Welch stated that some of the statements he made at the earlier interview were not factual but were a result of his opinions and conclusions about Sirhan. Mr. Welch stated he was not working at the ranch on the date of Sirhan's injury and the statement about Sirhan remaining in the hospital in critical condition for several weeks was untrue. He stated that the information about envying wealthy people could be described as a common feeling of envy which most working people possess. When asked about Sirhan's personality change, Welch stated Sirhan was the same person, very polite and considerate of other peoples feelings, and that he was this way prior to and after the accident.

Later, other bullet fragments were found and these were also given to the police. Dr. Wertlake stated that during the operation of the mastoid region, only fragments were recovered.

She had no idea who would identify her; and stated that although she owns a polka dot dress she had not worn it for several months.

WEST, ANDREW

West was a reporter for Radio Station KRKD and was on stage recording the speech. He followed the Senator from the stage toward the kitchen. West knew that he was ahead of the Senator due to the flow of the crowd. He had stepped into the pantry when he heard two shots and a woman scream. He turned on his tape recorder, pushed forward and observed a man on the floor, (Paul Schrade.) He saw Senator Kennedy on the floor, then observed two caucasians holding the suspect who had a gun. He stated that this was not of his personal knowledge, but information that he had received from the news conference held by Mayor Yorty. He stated that the information concerning the postman delivering pro-communist mail to the Sirhan home came from a KTLA news broadcast by George Putnam. Mr. Westerfield stated his allegations that both Sirhan and Lee Harvey Oswald were socialists and had declared themselves Marxists was not based on any evidence in his possession. He stated he formed this opinion after hearing of the inferences made in Sirhan's diary.

A statement that a female student at Pasadena City College had been invited to a Du Bois Club meeting by Sirhan could not be confirmed. He was unable to identify the young lady and stated he had never met her in person. He stated he had attempted to obtain an affidavit from her, but she refused to talk about the incident any further. The statement that a brother of Sirhan Sirhan, Soliman Sirhan, was arrested by the Iraq Government as an Israeli spy was also unverified by Mr. Westerfield. He stated that he had written the article in great haste and did not check the veracity of all the information contained in the pamphlet.
