Character of work

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were randomly assigned to a control group (CON) and an exercise group (EX). The EX group performed a 10-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of 30 minutes of moderate-intensity aerobic exercise. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during a submaximal exercise test at baseline and at the end of the 10-week training period. The EX group showed a significant decrease in HR and HRR at rest and during the submaximal exercise test compared to the CON group. The results suggest that a 10-week training program can improve cardiovascular fitness in sedentary, middle-aged men.
