#7 There's a cold gray cliffs on my left. I think it's... must be water below me. Trying to get better resolution. I got two flashes of pyramid shapes, but I don't want that confused with Egypt, it's not there. It was just pyramid shape. Had nothing to do with the country. They were not relative to anything, they were... it's a blank vignette.

#28 Let's try the UTM coordinates, see if that helps you focus.
UTM coordinates follow:

#7 Still...still gray. A rugged terrain, like if you wrinkle paper and then wad it up and straighten it out, just very rugged. A hull shape again. And there's like a narrow...narrow straights...ah...river like shape. Lock or bridge crossing it way down there. Lights reflecting from West...ah...I was trying to figure out my direction of view, but I...light reflection, water.

#28 OK. I have no further questions about this target at this time. If there's anything you'd like to add, please do so now.

#7 I haven't found any target.

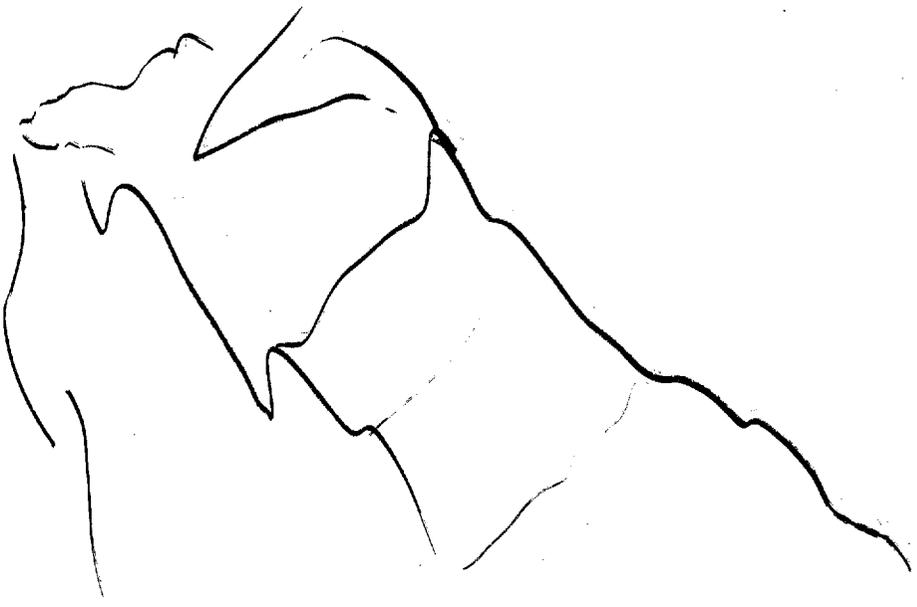

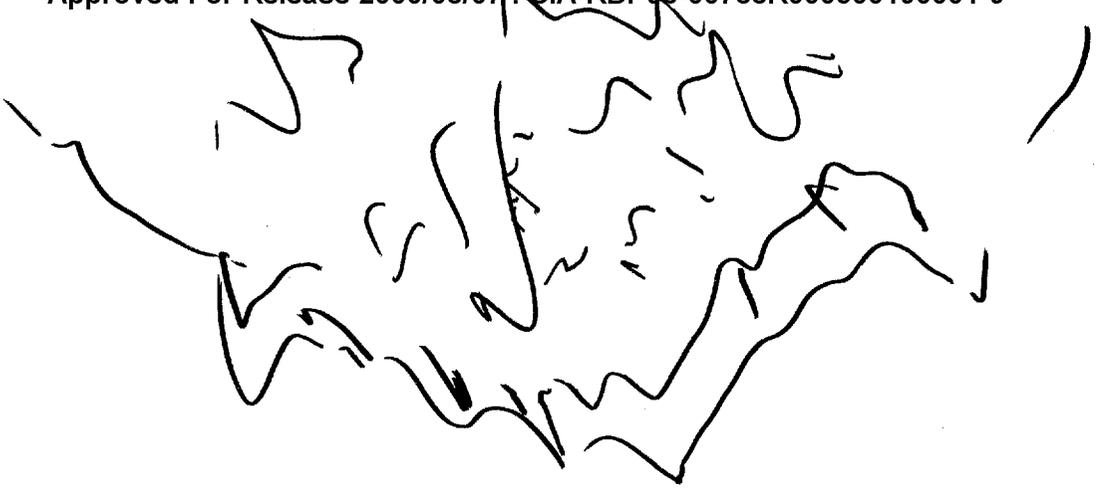

#28 Alright, fine. Let's draw the impressions that you have had.

#7 Well, the imagery was very dim and dull and vague to the point that it was probably stretching it to call it imagery. To do this in its proper perspective, I would probably have to put used carbon paper over this to look at the drawing through it, it was that dull and gray and vague. All this...ahm...land over here to the right...ah...on No. 1... ah...was the area that I looked at later that looked like a...if you wadded up paper and rolled it in a tight ball or foil, I guess, you know, aluminum foil, and straighten it out and flatten it on the table, you'd have the crinkly, wrinkly shape...ah...of the vague land mass I saw. It was more than one shape, like this hull shape, but they were...I was seeing them here and then different places not adjacent to each other. And I was apparently seeing them from above. I'm not sure it was ships, it was just a ship hull shape. I say ship because it's sharp on both ends. I guess sail boats could be sharp on both ends too. I saw something here that I...I don't know, it could have been locks, it could have been...ah...it could have been a drawbridge or swingbridge or something across what looked like a stream or a river...ah...banks 8-15 feet high. Very dull and very vague. And that was about it, I think.
