SUBJECT: SESSION SUMMARY (C/SS)

TO: DT-S (ATTN: [REDACTED])

1. (S-SS) Statistics: Viewer: 018
Session date: 9 DEC 87
Mode of operation: Solo

2. (S-SS) The perceptions gained in this session were:

a. There were no perceptions whatever about the general location (in the world) of the target site.

b. The general area surrounding the target appears to be flat land which has some unevenness to it, when taken as a very large area.

c. The immediate area around the target contains several very large buildings (see drawing, bottom P. 5), most of which had peaked roofs. These are widely spaced from each other, with large expanses of open space between which is very flat. There were repeated impressions of this entire space being paved or otherwise denuded of vegetation. Between the target structure and a nearby very large structure, there are lines on the ground. I could not tell whether these were roads or RR lines.

d. Looking for new construction (given in the tasking), I found myself standing on a tall, squarish structure with a flat roof. At the bottom was a broad, white flat area, a portion of which led off at one corner (see drawing, bottom P. 4). I was unable to find out whether the structure I was standing on was the new construction, or whether there was new construction TO it. I had the feeling that something on the flat roof of the structure was important, but every time I tried to get perceptions of it, I could not.

e. Inside the area of "new construction" there was a perception of metallic noises, large round, blunt-ended "things, and cylinders (see drawings, pages 8 and 10).

f. The site's purposes seemed to be mostly for assembly (not manufacture), a little for study, and very little for training.

3. (S-SS) Viewer's critique: There was the constant feel that I was in a "hit and run" procedure: I would "land on" target, get some impressions, then lose it almost immediately. I spent the entire session reacquiring the target rather than staying on it.
