Summary

Site is a large, sprawling compound-like area with at least one large rectangular, flat-topped structure with smaller rectangular structures on top. There are several smaller structures round about the area; the compound is surrounded by a fence and is located in an arid, isolated area. It is further guarded and protected and isolated from the area itself. Anything or anyone is excluded unless they have specific authorization and reason to be there. The main structure is low for its width and height, but still has a few levels or floors within it. Inside, it is somewhat primitive, makeshift, run-down--impression of unshielded incandescent lights casting shadows, austere walls, somewhat old and worn. There are corridors and rooms, within one of which is a group of people who seem intensely "pulled together" by what they're discussing--seems like some sort of religious coming-together. In this structure is one large open area whose purpose is "housing", "storage", and "assembly". Within this area are several round, long, tapered things that are shiny cream-grey in color with markings and small details. One is partially covered. They are supported by scaffolding-like bracing and supported on cross blocks on the floor; there is a large rack that seems to be holding from four to six of the objects. There are a total of eight to ten perceived. They suggest strong AOL of Maverick ATGM. Objects are so large they must be handled with heavy-duty forklifts or small industrial cranes when being shifted around inside storage area or are brought in from outside or removed from inside. More of these objects come in a few at a time from time to time, and leave in the same manner at about the same intervals. There seems to be a rather constant number on hand despite movement in and out. Further impression is that this is the only place in the compound these things are kept, since they are so important or require such stringent accountability protocols that whoever is responsible for them wants them in a centralized location. This place reminds me of the intermediate location reported in previous sessions.

5-1/2 wide, long, but not proportionately tall in comparison. Relatively low for size, but smaller rectangles on top like upper floors or housing; still is ^{a few or} several floors tall. May be just feel about construction - intended for utilitarian rather than aesthetic purposes. Surrounding environment seems isolated, air; dim/hazy, night now.

2-1/2 protected; guarded - like outside are excluded - almost "hermetically" sealed in a figurative sense. Decidely divided off from surrounding environment.

Self impression that these objects are so important and subject to ^{such} strict controls that those responsible for them want them kept in one specific, easy to guard place.

None of these things come in every now and again, and go out also - but never all at once. Spider - "Life" magazine.

This place reminds me of intermed data location from previous sessions.
