SUMMARY OF INFORMATION

The site consists of a series of low, structures which partially surround a flat, open area. From the front, the structures look sloped-roofed but from the top one can see that the tops are flat. The structures look very similar but are assigned to different users.

Predominant colors present at the site include white, blue, green and black. The air smells cool and clean.

There is something at the site that is making a constant click, click, click sound.

There is something at the site which is moving back and forth on a proscribed path.

The idea of commerce is associated with one of the activities at the site. The concept of transportation is also present.
