Summary of Information

Site is a cool, secluded, place with a sense of being both inside and outside, and both natural and artificial. It seems to be open to the sky. Predominant colors include grey, blue, and beige. There are vertical large, flat, grey surfaces, like concrete walls, that have a uniformly rough texture, like some sort of evenly troweled masonry, and provide the enclosing feeling present here. The floor/ground is flat and sectioned, with the sense of being covered with flat flag or paving stones. Trees and plants are present, but kept under control in their growing conditions, evincing a sense of ornamentation. Enclosed water is also present, bordered by a curving lip or wall. Something is dropped or splashed into the water. A serene, quiet, peaceful feeling prevails. Present also is a rounded, vertically-oriented, hard, white, smooth object that possesses some sort of aesthetic appeal. It seems to stand alone, or at least separated somewhat from surrounding elements of the site. There is an impression that people come here to relax, to observe, or to participate in some sort of genteel activity.
