Summary of Information

Site is indoors, in a large, almost cavernous structure, the walls of which are neutral in color where they are not taken up by huge, many sectioned windows that let in plenty of light. The exterior of the structure is white or very light colored, and/or at the time of viewing was reflecting a lot of sunlight. An object perceived inside it is yellow-orange, with long flat areas, many angles and curves, portions that are attached, with a long, rounded section making up the main body of it. Analytic impression of it was like a biplane, sitting on the floor of a large, voluminous structure. Another object that seemed to be suspended from the ceiling was matte black, long, sleek, tapering, with some white trim. Many people were present, walking around, looking, examining, and in some instances apparently buying things. There were many people-noises (i.e., conversational hum, talking, walking sounds, etc.), and a significant echo inside the structure when moderately loud noises occurred. The location had a display or compilation feel about it, and suggested a site similar to the Air & Space Museum.
