E. SESSION SUMMARY:

The target is currently preparing a small fishing vessel. He is personally involved with the on-sea aspect of this particular operation. He is well groomed and wears his hair in a pony tail.

He has an American companion with him; this person is a very large man with a bushy, reddish-brown beard. This American is pre-occupied with something hanging off of the dock and down into the water.

The vessel feels like a somewhat old wooden fishing boat. The back portion of the boat is open and there is a dearth of ancillary objects present i.e. benches, bait holding tank, fishing nets, pullies, etc.; the usual inventory found on a small time, commercial fishing boat.

The outward of the appearance of the vessel is deceiving as to its performance level. The exterior is very run down looking with large areas of peeling paint. It used to be white but numerous previous layers of paint are visible. The engine and propulsion system of this vessel is the opposite; it is high performance, well maintained and much faster than what is normal for this type of vessel.

The target knows that he is under surveillance but is extremely "cool" about it. There is an area within this particular harbor where a number of derelict boats are "parked". He plans on losing his "tail" by maneuvering among these boats.

I sense that this trip will be very soon; maybe this coming weekend (29-31 July).
