DATA SUMMARIES

(S/NF/SG/LIMDIS) Following are perceived highlights from each source. The period covered is 12-13 October 1993.

- (S/NF/SG/LIMDIS) Source (Green Data):

SG1A -- The recent developments in Somalia are dangerous. However, the soldiers will be returned. Destruction ceases for awhile, but there will be complications before the prisoners are released. [REDACTED] may be released within six or seven days or within the month. There will be a public display as significant officials decide release procedures through negotiations. It is perceived that the prisoners will be given to guards and taken to a set location where they will leave the region by plane or helicopter. Peace is temporary. The health of the prisoners is poor to fair, but they will have witnessed much and have a lot to tell when they are returned. Other prisoners are being held captive in Somalia. Mohamed Farrah Aidid is on the move and not in the same physical location as these prisoners. Dead bodies of soldiers will be returned to U.S. soil. The issues will not be resolved in Somalia until February of next year.

- (S/NF/SG/LIMDIS) Source (Red Data):

-- The American soldiers in Somalia are being held prisoner near the Benadir Secondary School and the hotel/motel called Taleh. They are in small rooms and some are locked up in beds. The prisoners are separated from each other. Overall, their health is as good as can be expected. At this time, there is not any serious health problems that can be detected.

-- There may be plans and intentions to move the prisoners or keep them on the move. The reason for this is unknown at this time.

-- Negotiations will aid in the release of the prisoners shortly. The names "Stahlwart" and "Fowler" phonetically surfaced as individuals who are working on the release of the prisoners. These individuals could be United Nations delegates.

-- It is difficult to determine at this time when dead soldiers will return to the U.S. because their bodies are desecrated.

- (S/NF/SG/LIMDIS) Source (Black Data):

-- The subject(s) of concern are located within the building sketched on (enclosure 2a and 2c). This structure is two or three floors high with the upper portion smaller and appears to have been placed on top of the lower stories at a later time.

-- This structure occurs two streets or blocks away from the building depicted on in (enclosure 2b, diagram "a"). The second structure is associated with a very tall and thin tower-like feature. This building/tower is "one of a kind" or unique onto its self. There are no other that are similar in the city.

-- The following attributes/features/characteristics occur within the vicinity of the two above mentioned structures:

--- Stacks of metal grates or panels reminiscent of corral fencing.

--- Half circles coming vertically out of the ground (see enclosure 2c).

--- A very large piece of yellowish cloth with frayed edges flapping in the wind.

--- An association with Morocco, or Moroccan culture/interests.

--- Metal rings or hoops stacked in piles.

--- The concept of "dried" water.

--- The concept of "Coptic", which related to a cross-shaped object lying flat on the ground; light; stone church; east-west orientation; sacred; enclave; abandoned; damaged and Christian.

--- Bakery-type operation nearby which produces a distinctive large, flat, puffy pizza-sized bread (enclosure 2c).

--- An area of low, gabled structures reminiscent of an American chicken farm (enclosure 2c).

--- The other, surrounding buildings are two and three storied structures with a "stepped or terraced" appearance which is reminiscent of southwestern U.S. Native American pueblo villages.

--- A compound where animal parts or bones are scattered around; the smell associated with this feature is nauseating to the point of throwing up.

--- Vehicle tracks in soft, unpacked dirt near the first building (enclosure 2c).

--- An area of partially ruined walls and jagged edges (enclosure 2c).

--- A circular feature composed of stone blocks reminiscent of a well with two linear walls or features extending outward, giving the appearance of wings (enclosure 2b, diagram "b").

--The following are attributes/features/characteristics either directly associated with the first structure or are things directly perceived by the prisoner(s) themselves:

--- Shadows associated with a bright light coming into the room through a crack in the door and also illuminating wooden slats or flooring.

--- A table outside of the door with the following objects sitting on it: books (dealing with geography and construction engineering) and a small, metal box reminiscent of a throat candy box (containing "dog tags").

--- The guard outside the door has on him an ornament made from elephant parts (hair, bone, etc.); this ornament is a symbol associated with a particular clan, "society", moiety" or religious faction.

--- There are three bodies hidden in very large, pipe-like objects with jagged holes; these objects are associated with a well.

--- The warrant officer is feeling depressed, saddened and weak; he has something wrong internally; a spherical growth or area is getting larger; it is dark, almost black; it is in his lower body, maybe the intestinal region.

--- He can hear metal being heavily hammered (not tapping) through the window; heavy metal clanking reminiscent of an anvil or beam.

--- He has moved over to a window and can look down; however, it is straight down a flat wall with no hand holds; he can also see exposed, unfinished wooden poles or supports of small trees or limbs; a curved wall directly below him and a large, stone wheel reminiscent of a grist or grinding wheel.

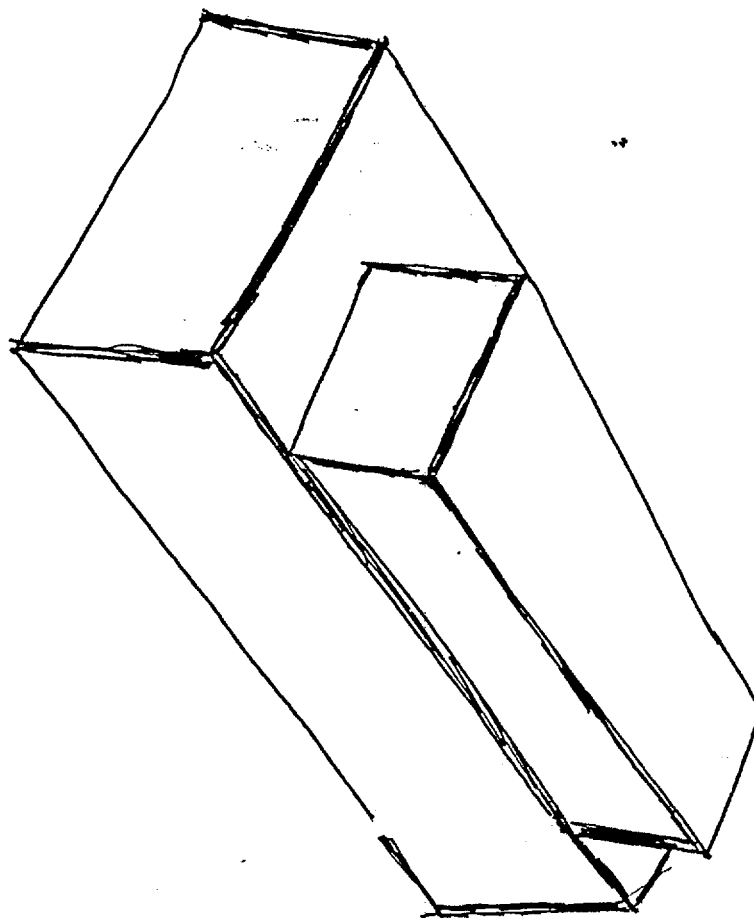

-- The opposition will return the remaining Americans (living and deceased) after there has been one more kidnapping or capture. It was perceived it is the latter with a very close relative or symbolic clan tie being captured by U.N./U.S. forces.
