- E. SESSION SUMMARY:

The target(s) of concern are located within the building sketched on pages and 1 and 3. This structure is 2 or 3 floors high with the upper portion smaller and appears to have been placed on top of the lower stories at a later time.

This structure occurs two streets or blocks away from the building depicted on in diagram "a", page 2. The second structure is associated with a very tall and thin tower-like feature. This building/tower is "one of a kind" or unique onto its self. There are no other that are similar in the city.

The following attributes/features/characteristics occur within the vicinity of the two above mentioned structures:

- stacks of metal grates or panels reminiscent of corral fencing.
- half circles coming vertically out of the ground (see pg 3).
- a very large piece of yellowish cloth with frayed edges flapping in the wind.
- an association with Morocco, or Moroccan culture/interests.
- metal rings or hoops stacked in piles.

- the concept of "dried" water.
- the concept of "Coptic", which related to a cross-shaped object lying flat on the ground; light; stone church; east-west orientation; sacred; enclave; abandoned; damaged and Christian.
- bakery-type operation nearby which produces a distinctive large, flat, puffy pizza-sized bread (page 3).
- an area of low, gabled structures reminiscent of an American chicken farm (page 3).
- the other, surrounding buildings are 2 and 3 storied structures with a "stepped or terraced" appearance which is reminiscent of southwestern U.S. Native American pueblo villages.
- a compound where animal parts or bones are scattered around; the smell associated with this feature is nauseating to the point of throwing up.
- vehicle tracks in soft, unpacked dirt near the first building (page 3).
- an area of partially ruined walls and jagged edges (page 3).
- a circular feature composed of stone blocks reminiscent of a well with two linear walls or features extending outwards, giving the appearance of wings (Page 2, diagram "b").

The following are attributes/features/characteristics either directly associated with the first structure or are things directly perceived by the target(s) themselves:

- shadows associated with a bright light coming into the room through a crack in the door and also illuminating wooden slats or flooring.
- a table outside of the door with the following objects sitting on it: books (dealing with geography and construction engineering) and a small, metal box reminiscent of a throat candy box (containing "dog tags").
- the guard outside the door has on him an ornament made from elephant parts (hair, bone, etc.); this ornament is a symbol associated with a particular clan, "society", moiety" or religious faction.
- there are three bodies hidden in very large, pipe-like objects with jagged holes; these objects are associated with a well.

- the warrant officer is feeling depressed, saddened and weak; he has something wrong internally; a spherical growth or area is getting larger; it is dark, almost black; it is in his lower body, maybe the intestinal region.
- he can hear metal being heavily hammered (not tapping) through the window; heavy metal clanking reminiscent of an anvil or beam.
- he has moved over to a window and can look down; however, it is straight down a flat wall with no hand holds; he can also see exposed, unfinished wooden poles or supports of small trees or limbs; a curved wall directly below him and a large, stone wheel reminiscent of a grist or grinding wheel.

Final Note: the opposition will return the remaining Americans (living and deceased) after there has been one more kidnapping or capture. I sense it is the latter with a very close relative or symbolic clan tie being captured by U.N./U.S. forces.
