Challenging a white wilderness, the author steers Ice Bird through Antarctic waters off Palmer Station. In 1972 he sailed the 32-foot sloop to the bottom of the world, barely surviving the ordeal, which he described in the December 1973 GEOGRAPHIC. Now, in his repaired and refitted vessel, he dares earth's stormiest seas once more in a bid to be the first man to sail alone around the Antarctic Continent.
