(which have) become part of the building (and which) could be perceived by a sensitive person. (The building) has a British Civil Service feel about it. (This facility) is official (in nature) with a lesser feeling of academia. On the fifth floor, location #3, (there) is an area (containing) at least two desk (like objects). (There are two people talking. The people here are serious, engineer types (but they) are talking about basics (and not(theory as if the theoretics have been solved and (all that is left(is putting "it" together. On the third floor, location #3, is a darkened area with (numerous) desk (like objects). Each (of these objects) has a very (very underlined by Source), bright light on it facing down at the desk. (The) people (at the desks) concentrate very hard and pay (great) attention (to their work). (These people) work with overlays (which depict (various) colored (concentric circles and arcs related) to strings of numbers (and number groupings). (Next to some of the desk) is (something resembling) a reference book (on a stand). (The people at the desks work) in the lighted areas (and turn frequently) to the reference (book) to make notes. The people here are all men and all civilians. They are intelligent and are required to do much work. There is a feeling, (however), that they are always behind. On the second floor, Location #3, (there is) an area composed entirely of women. The room has an odd shape with (many) angles and curves and an alcove area. (I have a preconceived impression) of a communion altar rail (like that found in the old style Catholic churches). In the alcove area is one woman, somberly dressed, working behind a horse-shoe shaped machine with keys (like piano keys). (There are) other women standing in other parts of the room. Many of (these) women are in (their) 50's and 60's and are nicely dressed in bright colors."

b. () During the actual session, Source reported other data which may impact on the final assessment of this target. That data is listed below in raw ~~unprocessed~~ ^{unevaluated} form:

(1) The odd shaped building is old but still quite functional. An ornamental wrought iron fence may surround some or all of the building but acts more for the aesthetic impact rather than the security of the building.

(2) Within the area identified as "fifth floor, location #5," there is an impression of high, vaulted ceilings and an abundance of dark colored wood, large beams (supports) can be seen rising at ^eangles from the corners, arching slightly towards the ceiling. Among the "desk like objects" is one larger desk, darker in color with a feeling of more authority and responsibility.

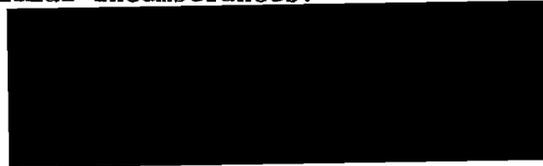

(3) Within the area identified as "third floor, Location #3," the people are seen working quietly at brightly lit desks. The overall room, is however, intentionally poorly lit. Each of the people at the desks are assigned quotas to fulfill along with daily missions. Key words and phrases pertaining to these duties were perceived as: "hieroglyphics, Chaucer, screens, digging, delving, strings of numbers, dispositions, plotting, channeling and overlays. This work is very exacting and time consuming requiring great patience and concentration.

(4) Within the area identified as, "Second Floor, Location #3, there is lighter colored wood in the odd shaped room. There is no discernible activity in this room but there is a cluttered feel about the area outside the alcove area.

4. () OPS FEEDBACK: No feedback has been possible on this session or the previous two sessions. Source continues to provide rather vague and disjointed descriptive data, the actual merit of which cannot, at this time, be discerned. One incident is worth, perhaps, a passing reference. In the room containing the woman, Source was asked to travel to a time when there was more relevant activity. He was unable to do due to the fact, (as stated by Source in post-session feedback) that he was wearing his wristwatch. This normally innocuous piece of functional jewelry, in Source's mind set, prevents him from "time" movement while in the altered state. Future sessions will be conducted with a more careful screening of such artificial incumbrances.
