E. SESSION SUMMARY:

----Target was perceived as a wooden, log structure characterized by the use of close knit logs and triangular supports with running parapets. One small enclosure towered above the logs as a look-out, sentry post. The structure represented some sort of fortress/fortification that one associates with early Anglo Saxon times. Primitive, stone-wheeled vehicles designed to be drawn by oxen were in the area. The brown-barked appearance of logs dominated the scene as a color. There was a feeling of poverty and difficult times and the threat of warring factions associated with the scene. The catapult was considered a modern weapon at this time in history.
