The target is a structure which bridges something and is located over water. It is exposed to all of the elements of the earth. It is high, long and narrow, with a type of arched openings in its construction. This is a thorough fare for people motion to go through and is similar to a raised open tunnel in its function. Vehicles can be found in the vicinity. The main colors around this bridged formation are blue and brown. On both sides of this high and long structure can be found rugged earth and a water body gushes underneath of it in an open air space. This site is located near the shore.
