Regarding EO12333 every single proposed collection operation will have to be reviewed to make sure that it does not violate. The issue is not the effectiveness of the proposed collection methods but the nature of the targets, which means regardless of what you think about remote viewing, you still have to pay attention.

Regarding HHS guidelines on Human Subject Testing, "you appear to be using human subjects for research purposes" You must follow the guidelines and obtain appropriate consent forms and approvals. Not onerous, but does add an additional bureaucratic layer.
